*As in the vanished days of yore
The tonsured monk with patient pen
Emblazoned histories and tomes
With all the deeds of saints and men,
And left a record of the time
A Chronicle which all may read;
So we have tried to leave a book
Which other years in turn may heed.*

*In story and in picture here
We've chronicled a year of life,
A year of growth and usefulness,
Of athletic student strife;
A tale of struggle and success,
Of great events the year has seen;
And thus we pay thee, Dear McGill,
A tribute from the year Fourteen.*

The Football Season

THE sixth of October, 1912, was a blazing hot day, and the University of Toronto rooters sat on the grand stand in their shirt sleeves, while the McGill and Varsity teams battled in the opening contest of the Intercollegiate season in the Queen City. For thirty minutes the McGill team, strengthened by the presence of Billington, who arrived in time to play in the game, held their own, but then the heat and a want of condition began to tell, and Varsity started to roll up the score till at the end the figures stood Toronto 26, McGill 13. The football prophets went home, satisfied that once again the blue ribbon of the Intercollegiate would come to the famous Varsity fourteen.

On the side lines, while his team were being badly beaten, stood Shaughnessy, cheerful through it all, not bothering his men but noting the Varsity methods, their strength and their weaknesses, and taking stock of his own men under trial. He returned to Montreal undismayed by the result, and immediately set to work to build up a team which would be able to meet and repel the Varsity attack and which would also be a fast working, hard plunging, tricky fourteen.

A week later the Queens team came to Montreal, and the game was played on a field that was practically a sea of mud. In spite of the wet going and the absence of Billington, the McGill team showed splendid form, and the catching of the backs and tackling of the wing men was excellent. In this game the men showed the effects of Shaughnessy's coaching, and their systematic playing was thoroughly appreciated by the critics, who foresaw the fact that the Varsity team would have difficulty holding the McGill team the following Saturday.

Four hard practices gave Shaughnessy a chance to round his men into shape for the struggle with Varsity. The field again was in very poor condition, although not nearly as bad as it had been on the previous Saturday. The Toronto team were confident of success, but the sure catching of the McGill back division and the finished trick plays and deadly tackling of the red and white line had not entered into their calculations. The McGill fourteen opened the game with a rush, and by a series of splendidly executed trick plays and double bucks secured a commanding lead in the first fifteen minutes of play.

The Varsity team then came back hard, but they were unable to make any headway against the deadly tackling of the McGill line, and the game ended with the score 28-7 in favor of McGill. Varsity claimed that their crushing defeat was largely due to the state of the field and the absence of Jack Maynard, their great running half. It is doubtful, however, if Maynard's presence would have made any material difference.

In this game the results of Shaughnessy's coaching were even more apparent than in the match against Queens. The trick plays came off without a hitch and the tackling of the wings was deadly, while the catching and kicking of the backs was superb. The secret of McGill's success lay largely in the fact that the half-backs, by returning the Varsity punts instead of running them back, kept the wing men of the latter team running up the field and back again and thus tired them out, while the McGill men were comparatively fresh. Another feature of the McGill team's play was Shaughnessy's development of the onside kick in which the team first swung across the field, three men remaining where the ball was scrimmaged and ready to follow up the kick which was made on the next down.

On November the second the team played their second game against Queens and in the first half of the game Queens had slightly the better of the plays, as Hazlett was in magnificent form and Billington seemed slightly off color. During the interval Shaughnessy gave the team a severe calling down and some good advice ; as a result their play improved wonderfully in the second half. In this period McGill scored two touchdowns and two rouges, while Queens were able to score only one point.

An unfortunate accident occurred in this game. Paisley broke a bone in his wrist and was replaced by Woolatt. Up to the time of his accident McGill's sturdy right-half had been playing stellar football and his loss was a severe blow to the team.

The following Saturday, while Queens and Toronto were playing in Kingston, Parkdale came within an ace of beating McGill in an exhibition game on the Campus. The visitors, although they confined themselves entirely to straight football, outplayed McGill at several stages and looked like winners until a run by Laing in the second period gave the red and white team a chance to buck across for a touch. The team, however, were without Lee, Billington and Paisley, and the absence of these men accounted in a large measure for the miserable showing.

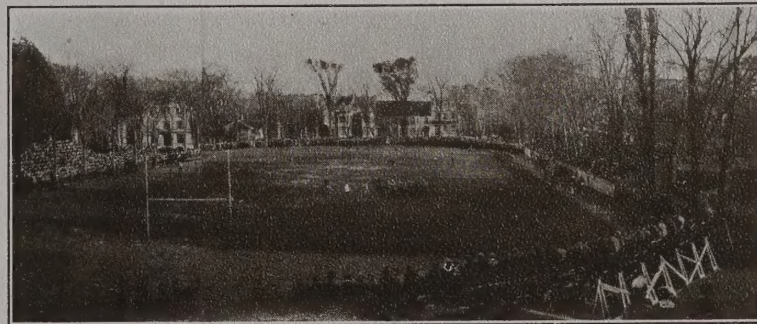

Varsity defeated Queens the same afternoon, and as a result tied with McGill for first place in the race for the championship. Ottawa was decided upon as the place for the play-off and so, on that memorable Saturday, eight hundred students went up to Ottawa to cheer the red and white team to victory.

The game was played on Lansdowne Park, and the field was in excellent condition. Varsity were very confident of winning as they considered their play suited to a dry, fast field, while McGill had earlier in the season demonstrated their superiority as mud larks. The McGill spectators were confident that the red and white team were fully capable of holding their own on any sort of a field, and the outcome of the game justified this belief.

At the outset McGill established their superiority and obtained a lead which they maintained and augmented throughout. The famous Varsity back division were held helpless by the deadly tackling of the McGill wings while Billington's phenomenal punts drove the blue and white team back for losses time and again. At the conclusion of the game McGill were carried off the field, winners by 14-3 and Intercollegiate champions for the year 1912.

A review of the season shows that McGill won out on their own merits and their ability to play hard, fast, scientific football. This was largely due to the energetic and capable coaching of Shaughnessy. Every credit, however, is also due the men who practised so hard and faithfully and triumphed so splendidly over last year's champions. The football team at a meeting held shortly afterwards decided not to enter in the Dominion finals. This step was a wise one in every way and brought to a fitting conclusion the most successful season in the annals of the University.

Shaughnessy

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY, there you have him. He could not escape fame with a title like that. The very name has a heartening and encouraging sound.

"Who is coaching McGill this year?"

"Shaughnessy."

"I never heard of him, but it sounds well."

And it sounded better and better as the season progressed and first Queens and then Varsity went down to defeat on the campus before the sure catching, hard tackling, and driving play of the team F. Shaughnessy, Esq., of Ottawa, was so rapidly developing into the finest fourteen that ever wore the red and white of McGill.

Shaughnessy was a martinet on the field, and he drilled the men through long hours of practice in all the essentials of the game until he had a sure catching back division, a fast wing line and a splendid offensive machine. Outside of coaching hours he made a host of friends, as he was always kindly, courteous and considerate to all those with whom he came in contact.

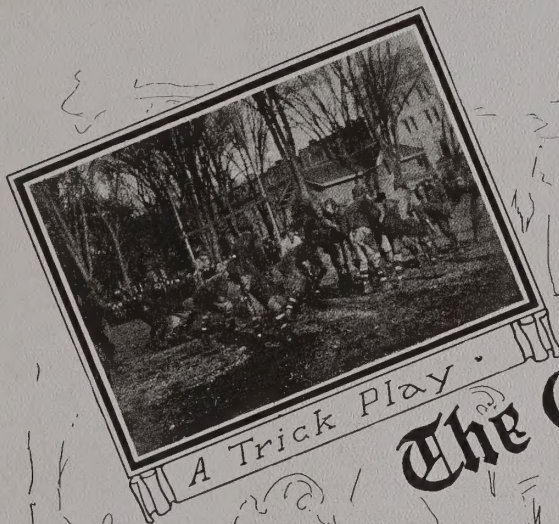

Shaughnessy made the McGill football team champions. The McGill team made the name of Shaughnessy famous in football circles. It was a splendid combination, and one which proved successful in every way.

"Who is going to coach McGill this year?"

"Shaughnessy."

"It certainly sounds well!"

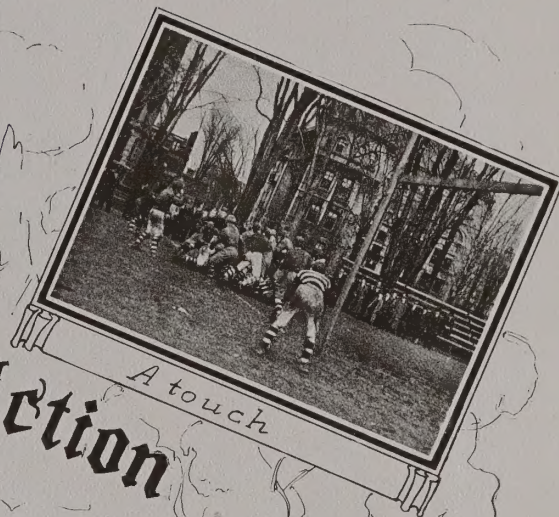

It does indeed, for it is the brightest augury for another successful season that could possibly be hoped for.

Rooters' Club and Band

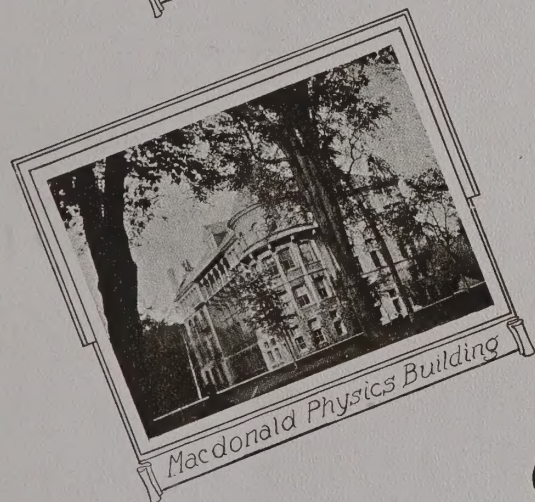

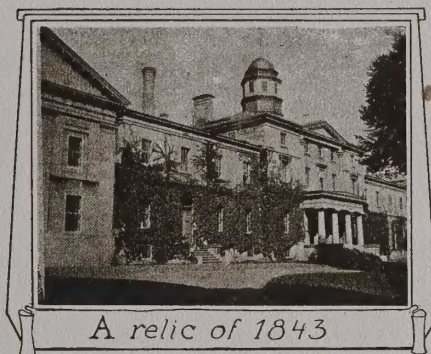

Stroud

P ERHAPS next to the work of "Shag" Shaughnessy and the phenomenal ability of each individual player, what did most to bring the football championship to McGill were the efforts of the several hundred enthusiastic undergraduates who formed the Rooters' Club. After many hours of practice the Rooters' Club turned out in full force at every game, rain or shine, and sang and cheered the team to victory. At Ottawa during the final struggle the far-famed Varsity rooters were completely outclassed by the McGill organization, 'ed by Bill Hughes, and the McGill Band—and herein lies the secret of the success of our Rooters' Club—Bill Hughes and the McGill Band.

William P. Hughes, B.A., Wesleyan Theolog. and championship hockey player, was the man who managed to inspire three hundred students with his own unequalled enthusiasm. Never was there such a cheer leader as "Wild Bill" Hughes. It is impossible to watch Bill lead a yell without catching the contagion of his spirit. If football playing is strenuous work, cheer leading is even more so with Bill Hughes. He can put more pure muscular effort into one McGill yell than the average man exerts in a week. And so, all hail Bill Hughes, leader of the Rooters' Club.

And then there was the band—a real, first-class, complete brass band. No citizen of Ottawa will soon forget the inspiring spectacle of hundreds of victorious McGill supporters bedecked with red and white, marching to the boom of the big bass drum and the swing of the cornet and the horn. The band was first organized this year, but has already more than justified its existence. So there was the ideal combination for a championship—Bill Hughes and the McGill Band.

Co-operation of The Theological Colleges

" 'Tis but the dawn of noontide yet to be."

IT is the ardent hope and firm conviction of every true Canadian that this prophecy refers to Canada in every one of her various activities. As a nation we are making history. To us is given an unparalleled opportunity to lead the way in many things. We are the connecting link between the two great Anglo-Saxon nations—the two great Christian nations. Canada must play a large part in the world situation. To Canada comes the opportunity and rests the responsibility of what the civilization of the world is to be.

Of all the movements which have arisen within our borders there is none more significant than the recent measure of co-operation established between the four theological colleges in affiliation with McGill University.

The idea originated with a small group of laymen, who, in the words of the new calandar, "believed that several of the Protestant Communions of the Christian Church in Montreal were desirous of working in closer harmony for the common end they had in view ; and that a larger measure of co-operation would result in greater efficiency ; and that there is a real demand for more united action."

Seven-eighths of the instruction given in theological colleges is common to all evangelical denominations. This common instruction is now under the control of the new joint faculty of the affiliated colleges. Under the new system such instruction as is distinctly denominational is given in the separate colleges which are still maintained as student residences. There has been no doctrinal compromise. No so-called "principles" have been sacrificed. The expense of maintaining four professors where one would suffice for the number of students is done away with. The faculty is now much smaller and the colleges are in a position to employ specialists and men who have devoted their lives to study along one special line of work.

While it is hoped that a new Common Theological Hall may soon be built on a suitable site, it was considered best to make such arrangements as would permit of the present session being held with the equipment now available. The whole plan has been found to justify itself in practice as well as in theory, and augurs well for the future.

The opening of the first session by the distinguished and eloquent Bishop Boyd-Carpenter, of Ripon, and Mr. Robert E. Speer, a great friend of all college men, was an event long to be remembered by those present. Their messages were stirring ones. The breaking away from the past to lay hold on a greater future, the following after the spirit of Truth into new and uninhabited regions, and above all the closer unity of man to man, so prominent in this new movement, ushers in a better day by whose light life itself may be seen in truer perspective.

" Our little systems have their day,
They have their day and cease to be :
They are but broken lights of Thee,
And Thou, O Lord, art more than they."

THE SONG OF THE R.V.C.

I

We come from the East and we come from the West,
From the North and the South come we.
And proudly we claim the dear and honoured name
Of the girls of the R. V. C.

Chorus

So cheer, girls, cheer for the scarlet and the white
The banner of nations yet to be,
And join hand in hand for the glory of our land
And the honour of the R. V. C.

II

The sons of old McGill, with their strength and with their skill
Win honour over Queens' and Varsity.
But we with brain and pen are the rivals of the men,
And we'll beat them in the R. V. C.

(Chorus).

III

Tell it long and tell it loud, of our College we are proud,
And so of us proud may she be,
Let us up and play the game to be worthy of our name,
As the girls of the R. V. C.

(Chorus).

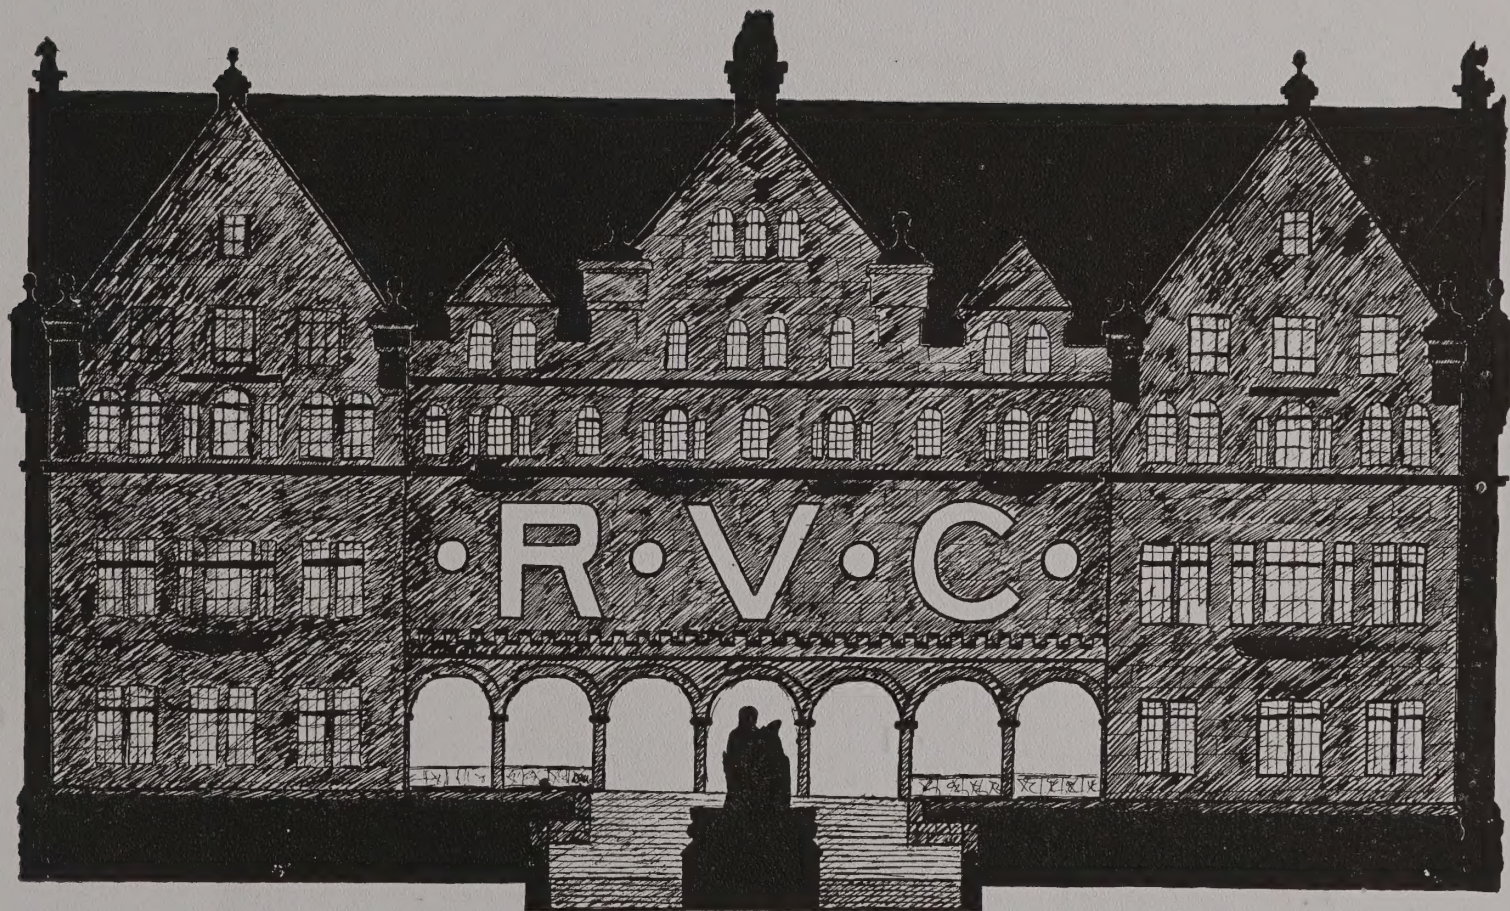

IV

And when the years are sped, let others here instead
Ring the chorus full and free,
But though we are far away, for ever we will pray
God's blessing on the R. V. C.

(Chorus).

Class History of R.V.C. '14

IN the spring of 1910 a glorious comet passed close by our earth. The cause is, of course, perfectly apparent. It was that spring the class of '14 were writing their Matriculation exams; it was the following autumn they entered college. Thus, as was meet, the heavens themselves blazed forth the arrival of this most remarkable of College Years.

Thirty-three of us there were who started on the shining path of glory in the R.V.C. I confess we were, perhaps, some of us, slightly tinged with that shade which is known amongst the vulgar as "green." But such slight failings as this rapidly disappeared. We were initiated; and after that long progress through the immigration department we felt we had really become part of College. In an incredibly short space of time we made ourselves felt as a rising power. We carried off the Tennis Trophies, class and individual. It is true we did not have an exactly brilliant success in Basket Ball, but we made up for it on the literary field.

The Freshmen won a glorious victory over the Sophs in the second of the inter-year debates. Sad to say we were defeated in that against the Seniors, but in no wise cast down, we turned with keen interest to the lighter side of College life. Fudge parties, maple sugar on the snow, and other delights which need only be suggested became the order of the day. Finally came the exams; and after a desperate struggle we passed, or most of us passed, into the second year. To five we must at this point bid farewell—the attractions of home life proved too strong. The fortunes of the rest we shall now follow through the second year.

Autumn brought us together again as sophs, wearing a pleasing dignity conferred upon us by that appellation, filled with a supreme consciousness of our own merits and privileges, and an overpowering desire to impress them upon others, at last it was we who were the noble Sophomores whom the little Freshies in their turn would honour and obey. Poor Freshies! how green they were! Something must be done, so their initiation into the ways and manners of college life was planned—a terrible and awe-inspiring thing from the moment that two soldiers led them away to torture by solemn, blackrobed figures, till they tasted of the brine that took off some of their freshness. Since this is the history of our illustrious year, I hasten to revert to our own victories. As in the First year, the Tennis Championship was ours. In Basket-ball and Public Speaking we were not quite so successful, winning only second place in each. But this year we were successful in both debates, thus carrying off the much-prized Debating-shield. To come back to sports—This year saw the last of the championship matches between Macdonald College and the R.V.C., R.V.C. winning the trophy this last year as always. It is much to be regretted these matches had to be stopped, as they always lent such interest to college sports.

In October of 1912, we gathered together, not only ourselves, but twelve others who joined our ranks from the West. And here we would wish to extend a very hearty welcome to those Vancouver and Victoria girls who are proving so great an addition both in learning and athletics. To accommodate the unusually large number of resident students the Learmont House, next door to the College, was opened under the care of Miss Cameron. The results of this year's competitions are as yet mostly unknown. The R.V.C. was decidedly fortunate in carrying off third year scholarships. We have again won the Tennis Championship, and again hold second place in basket-ball. In debating, we have unfortunately been unsuccessful, but we hope great things from the Public-Speaking Contest, and from Hockey, which has been reinstituted this year.

Mademoiselle Gréterin

WITH the appointment of Mlle. Gréterin as Lecturer and Resident Tutor in French, an important addition to the staff of the Royal Victoria College has been made.

Mlle. Germaine M. N. Gréterin was born in Paris in 1888. Graduating from the "Lycée de jeunes Filles" at Marseilles in 1905, she received the "Diplome de fin d'études secondaires" and in the same year the "Brevet supérieure de capacité à l'enseignement primaire."

Three years later she took the degree of "Baccalauréat Section latin-langues" and entered "La Faculté de Lettres de l'Université de Paris (Sorbonne)" where she was a student for three years. There she entered a competition whose object is to select the teachers for the "Lycées et Collèges de Jeunes Filles" which belong to the state. The diploma awarded to successful candidates, and which Miss Gréterin received, is called the "Certificat d'aptitude à l'enseignement secondaires de jeunes filles—ordre des lettres."

Mlle. Gréterin then entered the third year Arts at the "Ecole Normale Supérieure" at Sevres where the greatest number of the state-teachers are trained.

The year 1911-1912 was spent as a teacher in the "Collège de Jeunes Filles" at Tourcoing, where she obtained the "admission à l'agrégation" and her appointment as Lecturer in French at McGill.

The Opening of the Learmont House

IN 1898, thanks to the munificence of Donald Smith, Lord Strathcona, the Royal Victoria Colleg for women was opened with the large attendance of five resident students. By the year 1910, this number had increased ten-fold, and the college, even with the numerous alterations that had been made in the main building itself, was filled to its utmost capacity. This year, owing largely to the unusually great number of Western students, further accommodation had to be sought, and a new house was opened under the wardenship of Miss Cameron.

A few years ago the land lying between the R.V.C. and University Street was added to the College grounds. On this property stands the Learmont House, a most charming building, which still preserves the quaint and ornate decorations of the early Victorian Period. We are still hailed by the figures of Hygeia and Proserpine as we pass through the front door and clatter down the brilliantly tiled hall floor. Stars still look down on us from the lofty ceiling of the hall. The ancient dining-room still supports its roof of orange trees laden with gorgeous fruit.

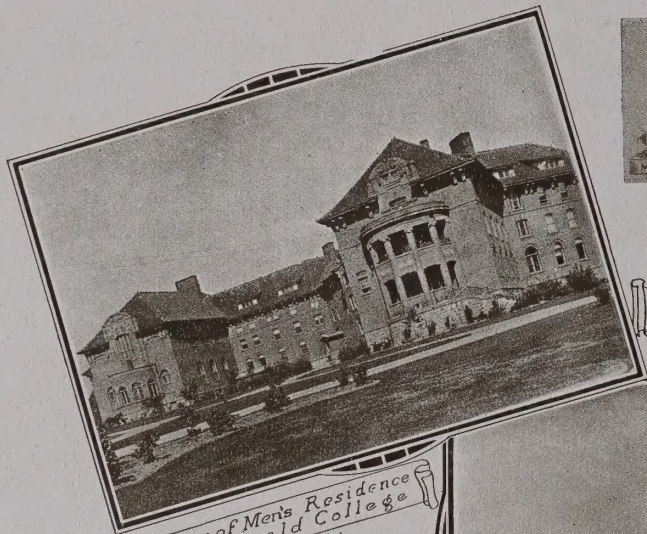

The house is fairly large, but since the rooms are large also, there is only accommodation for six students. At the beginning of the term, the decision as to who should be the favoured few was anxiously awaited. Finally, one Post-Graduate, Miss Myra Ellison, and four juniors, Miss Clara Fritz, Miss Alice McKeen, Miss Margaret Hay and Miss Helen Willis, were selected, and to this number was added one Freshie after Christmas.

The privileges and delights of being a "Learmonter" can only be appreciated by a member of the family. It is true every one can see and admire the advantage of the large rooms, hot and cold water in each room, heavy curtains and new furniture, etc., etc., but the subtler delights—the select company, the family feeling, the quiet and studious atmosphere of the place, that last, lingering meal of cocoa, biscuits and jam—these attractions can only be appreciated by one who has experienced them. But the chief attraction, as my readers have doubtless already guessed, is the charm of the Head of the House.

History of Agriculture, 1914

WE are a chip of "Old McGill." We call ourselves "Macdonald," and it is with sincere appreciation of this connection with our grand Alma Mater that the present Juniors in the Faculty of Agriculture are the first to fully accept the part allotted to them in the McGill Annual, and to endeavor with the rest of the Year at McGill to make this souvenir of 1914 not only equal to those of the past, but to set a higher standard for the junior years which follow. To me comes the still greater honor of recording the first history of a class in Agriculture at "Old McGill," a theme which warrants a worthier pen to do it justice.

This country of ours is in the throes of a new birth ; her great problems are being solved by thinking men. Great thoughts produce great events, so we have Macdonald College founded on the banks of the Ottawa. It is the work of the college and university to reveal men's powers to themselves, as well as to develop and strengthen those powers of which they are already conscious.

To-day, as never before, Canada needs men of power, and of power in agricultural lines. Men who are not afraid to exhaust the possibilities in their efforts to develop their power and apply it to the great work of making this land the best on the face of the globe.

To qualify for leadership in this great work was the uppermost thought in the minds of the thirty-eight enthusiastic freshmen who arrived at St. Annes the latter part of September in 1910, to take up the science of agriculture. Great events produce great men, and this was no exception, for from those somewhat raw recruits have already developed men who have brought honor, not only to Macdonald, but to McGill as well.

New conditions, at first, make men look out of place, so we were glad of the opportunity offered by the Sophomores for admittance to college life. It was a howling mob that extricated us from under our overturned beds in the small hours of the morning, hurried us to the judgment seat, before which we made our weak defence, registered our vows, and then descending to the swimming tank, crossed our Rubicon, full-fledged inmates of the residence.

The famous "Critchley" hovered over our innocent selves for the first few weeks, then "Jack" Westgate took the reins of office and united we continued our freshman year. In sport "Jack," Young, and Muir showed what could be done on the track, while "Monty" and others won respect in the gym. Our literary society gained popularity by throwing open its doors and sharing its programs. At our Grand Banquet we upheld our honor, not even being outdone by the professors themselves. Even Reed could show them how to smoke. Final exams. proved interesting and numerous, but to a few were insurmountable obstructions. Luckily for us we were able to "average" and stood closely by "Card" not knowing as yet what "Waugh" had to say. After a glorious bonfire, where the girls got their due, the class dispersed, many to their farms, while a few remained at the College, privileged to work on the various departments. It was work all day and "fuss" in the evenings, especially on Sundays, till the middle of June, with a lull till the first of September.

Twenty-eight returned for the Sophomore year, full of good intentions for work, but an uncontrollable passion for fun. The latter appeared in the new brand of haircutting applied to the Freshies, and the "free for all" molasses shampoo as a hair restorative. Following this came the much appreciated cleansing shower and plunge in the tank. "'15" then shook hands with their benefactors and were allowed to finish their slumbers.

We made a new departure in the election of the girls' "Housemother" as our Honorary Vice-President and many happy times were enjoyed as the result of this social arrangement. Fiske, as President, had to apologize but twice, which was going some considering all the fun we had.

On "Sports Day" we showed our speed by capturing the "Robertson" trophy, the greatest honor obtainable. "Dick Williams" was individual champion, with Young a close second. Muir and Young "made" the McGill track team and helped to win the Intercollegiate Meet. "Monty" easily brought our basketball and baseball teams into the running for the Robertson Shield for indoor games and clinched the class hockey without playing the schedule.

The Freshmen's City Banquet furnished a night of rough-house, and the flashlight photograph the souvenir of an intensely amusing experience. Our Sophomore Banquet reached the right spot, and with the Class Snow-shoe Tramp were among thy enjoyable events of the year, even "Father" Craig surprised us by snow-shoeing with one of the girls and shooting the shoot among the rest. Mrs. Muldrew's Tea was a pleasant introduction to our exams. The Final dance was second only to the "Masquerade," being made more enjoyable by the splendid bonfire serenade outside on the campus. We then bid adieu, leaving "'14" on the Main Building's tower, and most of our caution money as security and as a free-will endowment proper. Even the "'14" banner floated at half-mast at our departure.

Most of the Sophomores received their "Diplomas." Some took up farming immediately, while the others returned in October, 1912, to take the advanced work for the "Degree," which we hope to receive in June, 1914. Muir has been honored as our Junior President. Several wise men from the East have joined our ranks, among them a few from Truro. Again we are taking our place in College activities. Our popularity among the "fair sex" still increases. Our classmen have been often heard on the College platform and have assumed the work of carrying on our College Magazine.

To the rest of our year at McGill we wish abundant success, and for ourselves we will go on qualifying, keeping ever before us our inspiring motto "Mastery for Service."

FACULT'WOK

(From "Alice in R. V. C.-land")

1.—'Twas football, and the student throng
Did dale and leacock o'er the land,
Danmurray'd was the college gong,
And the bone-grinds ruttan'd.

2.—Beware the Facult'wok, my son,
Avoid the durley trap it sets.
Beware the porter net, and shun
The hurlbatt suffragettes.

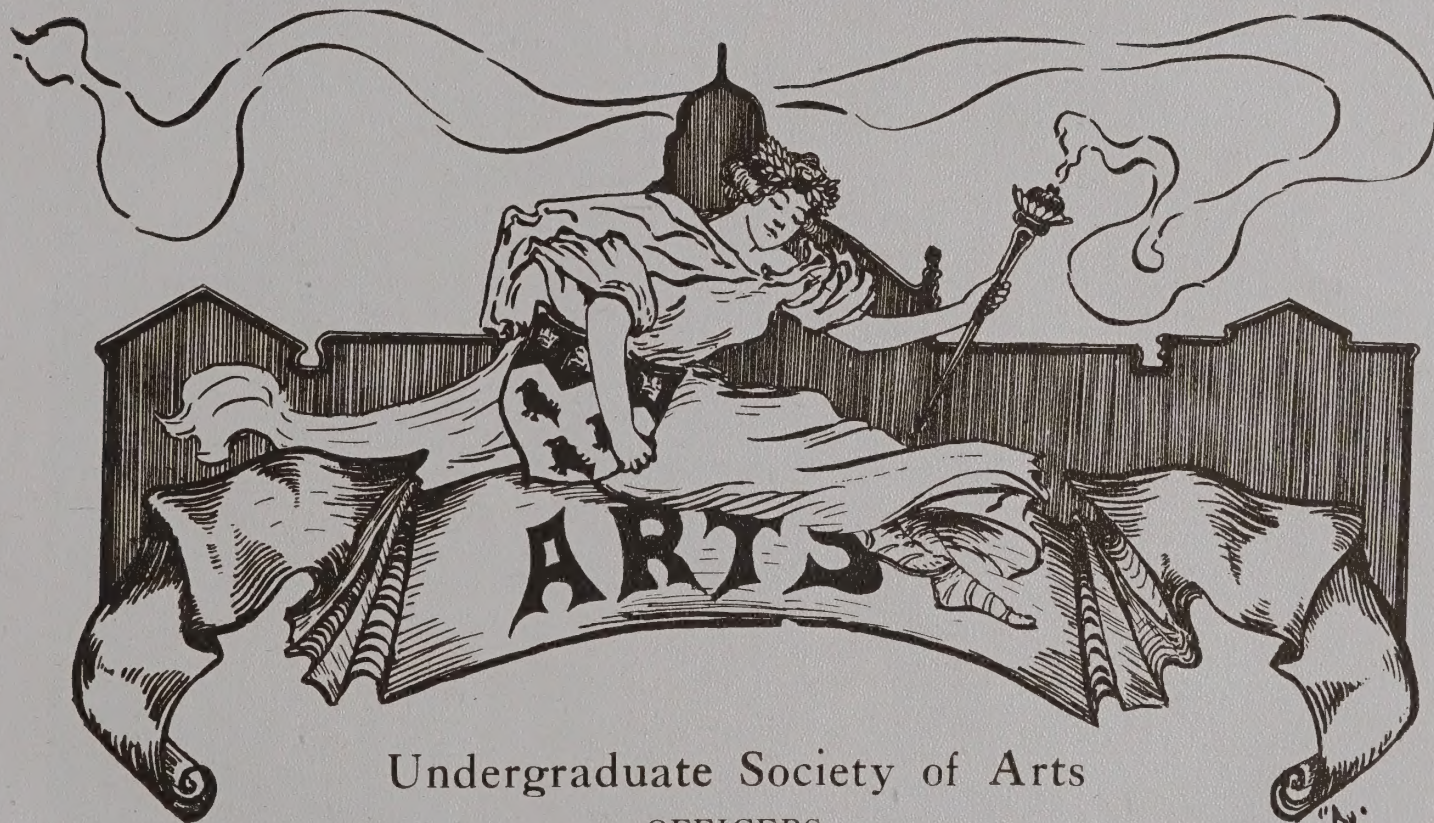

3.—He took his armstrong sword in hand,
Long time the alcock foe he sought,
So rested he by the stansfield tree,
And hickson'd there in thought.

7.—'Twas football, and the student throng
Did dale and leacock o'er the land,
Danmurray'd was the college gong,
Aand the bone grinds ruttan'd.

4.—And in as caldwell murk he stood,
The Facult'wok with eyes of flame,
Macnaughton'd through the elder wood,
And buntied as it came.

5.—One, two! One, two! Like union shew
The armstrong blade went snicker-snack,
He fled the noise, and with the moyse
He brodie-brockwell'd back.

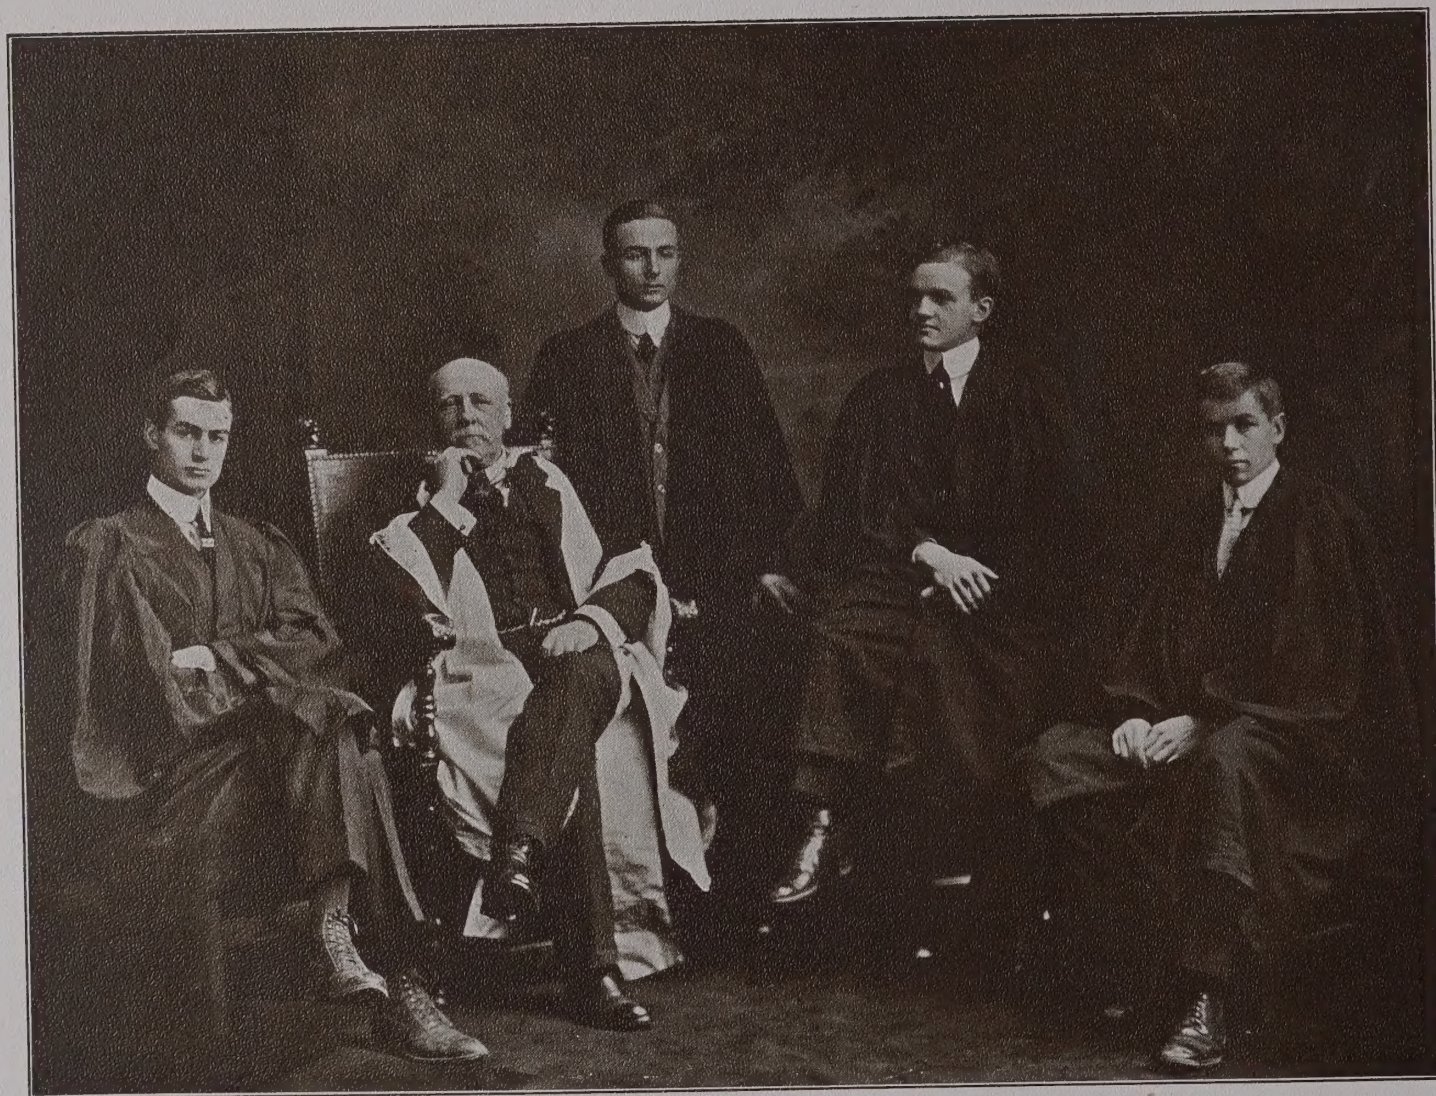

6.—And hast thou slain the Facult'wok?
Come to my arms, my R. V. C.!
O perrin nobbs! O slush! O snobs!
He samslack'd in his glee.

Professor Lloyd

PROFESSOR FRANCIS ERNEST LLOYD, M.A., comes to us from Auburn, Ala., to be the MacDonald Professor of Botany with a record of study and achievement in many different fields.

Though born in England, in 1868, in Manchester, and of Welsh parents, he took his A.B. at Princeton in 1891, and four years later won his A.M., at the same University. During the next five years he was Assistant Professor, and then Professor of Biology and Geology at Williams College, and later Professor of Biology at Pacific University, Oregon. After study at Munich and Bonn, he returned to America, and was married in 1903. In 1906, Professor Lloyd was an investigator at the Desert Botanical Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Following this he was cytologist of the Arizona Experimental Station and then Director of the Department of Investigation of the Continental-Mexican Rubber Co. Since 1908, he has been Professor of Botany at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Professor Lloyd has been on botanical expeditions to Mexico, Puget Sound, Alaska, and to Dominica, B. W. I. He was also editor of the "Plant World" for several years. He is a fellow of the A. A. A. S.; an honorary member of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy; member of the Botanical Society of America; of the New York Academy of Science, and of the honorary scientific society of Signia Xi.

Mr. Lloyd's activities do not stop here however, for he is the author of some hundred and twenty-four publications. Among the more important of these are: "The Comparative Embryology of the Rubiaceae;" "The Teaching of Biology;" "Physiology of Stomata;" and "Guayule, a Rubber Plant of the Chihuahuan Desert." In recognition of his work on the Guayule he has recently been elected a corresponding member of the Centro De Ciencias, Letras E. Artes of Campinas, Brazil.

The coming of such an eminent Botanist to McGill will mean much toward the development of the science in Canada. We believe Professor Lloyd will help to make the name of McGill justly famous throughout the world, and we hope that his connection with our Alma Mater may be the means of bringing even added distinction to his already well-known name. Short as has been his residence at McGill, Professor Lloyd has already entered into the life of the University, being respected and admired by all with whom he has come into contact, both undergraduates and professors. We wish to extend to him a very hearty welcome.

Professor René Du Roure

PROF. DU ROURE, who is a graduate of the University of Paris and a native of France, comes to McGill to fill the place left vacant through the death of our much-beloved Dr. Gregor. For some years M. Du Roure has been on the staff of Laval University, and his appointment at McGill is another example of the very real spirit of co-operation which exists between the two Universities.

Although not very well acquainted with the English language and the eccentricities of Canadian students, Prof. Du Roure has already achieved an unprecedented measure of popularity among those with whom he has come in contact.

His work with the French Club is especially notable as illustrating a keen interest in undergraduate activity. From the entirely defunct condition into which the Club had fallen during the last few years, Prof. Du Roure helped to build it up to the flourishing and attractive society it is to-day.

We predict for M. Du Roure a career of much success and popularity in his work among the students of McGill.

Monsieur Perdriault

ANOTHER new name on the staff of the Department of Modern Languages is that of M. Perdriault, who is lecturer in French. M. Perdriault came from France two years ago, and has been until this year lecturer at Williams College. The experience he has gained in this way with American students renders him peculiarly fitted to fill the position he now holds.

We welcome M. Perdriault to McGill and hope his sojourn here will be both long and mutually helpful.

The Art of Public Speaking

ANEW and interesting departure has been inaugurated this year by the Faculty in the form of a course of lectures on Public Speaking and Argumentation. This course, which consists of one period of two hours' duration each week, is under the direction of Dr. Cyrus McMillan and Mr. G. W. Latham, and is open to men and women of the third and fourth years.

Short lectures on the preparation of briefs, an unknown art to many who aspire to speak in public, and much actual practice in debating under the critical eye of both instructor and class, are the chief features of the course. Suffice it to say that the plan has justified itself through the discovery and development of much latent talent, from the inimicable wit of Mr. Denny to the fiery dissertations of Mr. Farthing and Mr. Walsh.

IN MEMORIAM

ARTHUR GUY EMBURY FISHER

BORN NOVEMBER 4th, 1892

DIED DECEMBER 22nd, 1912

IT is with deep sorrow that we record the loss of one of McGill's most promising students. Guy Fisher entered in 1909 with the class of Arts '13 and was always a leading scholar. Last year his work in Honor Economics was particularly brilliant. In the words of Dr. Leacock, "McGill could have better spared a professor." Fisher was elected treasurer of the "Lit" for this year, but his illness prevented him from taking any part in the meetings. He was a leading Liberal minister in the Mock Parliament and a very promising speaker.

History of Arts 1914

OFFICERS

President	C. SPURGEON MCKENZIE	Secretary	NORMAN D. JOHNSTON
Vice-President	ROYCE L. GALE	Treasurer	JAMES D. MCKEOWN

THE history of Arts '14, if honestly and accurately written, would be very much like Arts '14 itself—solemn, ultrarespectable, and in no manner displeasing. Respectability has always been an outstanding characteristic of our class. It is the virtue which outshines all others and overawes whatever feeble vices that may have unwittingly crept in.

However, as is only natural and to be expected, Arts '14, in its youthful exuberance of spirit managed to crowd into the first year of its existence enough thrilling episodes to fill to the yellow covers a good old-fashioned "Penny Blood and Thunder." Relying on slightly superior numbers and far superior intellects we immediately declared war against '13, and throughout the campaign it must be admitted they were consistently outgeneraled and outfought. We freshest of Freshies defeated them decisively in a pushball "Rush," the last appearance of a moribond custom. After the "Battle of the Benches" on sports Day many a Sophomore limped home capless, sad, sick, and forlorn, bearing on his person eloquent testimony to the prowess of 1914. But the most blood-curdling battle of the campaign took place in that narrow passage which leads to the Economics classroom in our palatial hall of learning. While Arts '13 were assembled therein trying in vain to discover "What is Money?" the enemy attacked their stronghold. A most sanguinary conflict ensued from which the following casualties resulted: One door demolished, decimation of already depleted caution money; one Professor Leacock, dignity destroyed; several fair co-eds, shock and nervous prostration; many pseudo-economists of '13, considerably damaged; and finally President of Freshies, Stewart, alias "Jones," identity lost.

A rather weak attempt at a sleigh drive for our classmates at the R.V.C. marked another epoch in our early history. The majority of the class proved either too disloyal or too bashful to put in an appearance, while the ladies, feeling duly honored at the invitation turned out en masse to enjoy the evening. Even with one girl for each arm there were far too few boys to look after everyone.

Later on in the winter Arts '14 assisted greatly in giving Hon. Clifford Sifton a "warm" reception. O'Dell covered his class with glory by falling victim to the club of a sturdy policeman. A large delegation represented the class in that memorable Sifton cabdrive—some helping the fireworks, and others in that noble little band who, under Captain Dan Gillmor, effected the complete route of the paraders.

We also distinguished ourselves on other occasions and in other ways. Our basketball team met with not a single defeat, and finally was incorporated "in toto" as the McGill Junior Team. P. V. Samson and Harold R. Griffith represented Arts '14 against Science '14 at the "Lit" and succeeded in proving to the satisfaction of the judges, at least, that as a democracy the United States is the most miserable of failures. What could not the warm-wind artists of Arts '14 prove? In March Donald MacGuire, who has since achieved intercollegiate fame as a debater, and Harold R. Griffith represented the class in a debate in Ottawa against Ottawa Collegiate Institute, and won a glorious victory.

So disastrous did this rapid succession of nerve-racking adventures prove, that some, who could not endure it and live, fell by the wayside, and are remembered by us survivors as martyrs to the strenuous life of a first year at college. Still others engaged in vain conflict with the attendance rule, or with inane exams, set by still more inane examiners, and thus were persuaded to part company with us. Those who remain are excellent examples of Darwin's theory—not as regards the missing link, but that of the "survival of the fittest."

In our sophomore year nothing exciting occurred. Even the annual "rush" we abolished at the request of Dr. Barnes and the expressed wish of Sir William Macdonald. W. Arthur Brooks was elected president of the class and Royce L. Gale vice-president. Such world-famed characters as Ye Broken Reed, Hal Shaughnessy, the tailor's model, and idol of the St. Catherine Street "Queens," and Eugene Duclos, terror of the weak, were missed from amongst us. Had it not been that our old friend Loftus McInnis sometimes "came in late," that Lavery essayed to ask, and Denny to answer all questions in Economics; and that Henson wrote numerous and voluminous letters to the "Daily," we surely would have perished from "ennui"—whatever that means.

So those of us whom "Lemmy" has successfully navigated across the dangerous styx in company with Aeneas, and who have been able to tear themselves away from the seductive embraces of Dr. Hickson's logic—these few have now attained the dignified and exalted position of Juniors. To ensure the absence of erring footsteps in the flock, we elected C. Spurgeon McKenzie to the presidency, and "Windy" Gale became once more vice-president, he having shown in our sophomore year his unsurpassed ability to fill an office requiring of its holder that he be able gracefully to do nothing.

As a class we have never displayed any marked ability as "fussers." There have been, however, several outbreaks over which we had no control. Our classmate "R.V.C" Holden was particularly in prominence with a fair one at the final football game at Ottawa, and even "Windbag" Henson is sometimes noticed at the "Castle Blend."

Messrs. Tinling and Scott represented us on the 1914 Junior Dance Committee, and aided in making that function the most brilliant and enjoyable ever held at McGill. A glance through the pages of this volume is all that is needed to impress one with the way in which members of our class have become interested in, and indispensable to college activities, athletic and otherwise. "Buster" Reid has brought honor to us through his work on the championship football and basketball teams. Several of our men hold important folios in the cabinet of the McGill Mock Parliament, and we have developed intercollegiate debaters. We are well represented on the Board of the "Daily," the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A and many other bodies.

To write the "history" of the remainder of our college career would be a simple matter for a prophet, but prophecy is a gift of the gods, and Arts '14 is merely respectable, not divine. True, however, we must have something of the divine in our natures, for despite the efforts of that surprising Theolog, Henson, we have consistently voted for, attended, and enjoyed "dry" dinners. But some things may be easily foreseen without the special gift of prophecy. Most of us will obtain the degrees we covet, and will be cast out upon the world handicapped with a suffix to our names. If, in 1930, or 2030, or thereabouts, some celebrated divine brings about a much-needed revival of religious interest, or a great statesman delivers the country from a periodic "German peril," or a hitherto unequalled coach guides a McGill team to championship of the world, or even if a street car conductor in the most cultivated and refined of voices cries, "En avant, s'il vous plait!" and succeeds for the first time in the history of Montreal Tramways in persuading the passengers to "en avant," may we not expect to hear them in their moments of leisure proclaim to all the world that their proudest boast is that they were members of Arts '14? Yes, we think we may. Honor to him, to whom honor is due!

McGill School of Commerce

Class of 1913

THE School of Commerce has been established at McGill University in order to meet the special requirements of young men who propose to enter upon a business career and who are anxious to attain a higher standard of acquirement, both in general education and special study than that imparted by the programme of studies in an ordinary High School. The curriculum of the Commercial Course is therefore designed to combine an essentially practical education with such an amount of general culture as it is fitting that every business man should have. The main object of the School is rather to develop capacity than to impart special information, although particular stress is laid upon those subjects, a knowledge of which is necessary for business men.

The class of 1913 is the second graduating class of the School of Commerce, their being five graduates last year.

ALLEGIANCE

1.—McGill doth stand, in semblance fair,
A chosen sovereign, mine and thine;
Ten thousand fields of promise rare
Are hers to rule by Right Divine:
Knowledge her crown, her sceptre Truth,
The boundaries of her kingdom, Youth.

2.—What shall then her governance mean,
Mean to those minds whose trust she keeps?
Mere slavish seeking of the seen
While all the better nature sleeps,
Or ideals touched with Duty's fire,
A constant struggle ever higher?

3.—Her children come from every clime
Seeking to hear and see and know
Truth material, truth sublime,
To every clime her children go,
And so o'er all the world to-day
Loyal hearts own Alma Mater's sway.

STUDENTS OF THE FACULTY OF LAW

Class History of Law 1914

IN the autumn of 1911 the year of Law '14 gathered in the old but stately east wing of the Arts Building commonly known as the Law Building. It was but a few days after the opening that we were honoured with the presence of the second and third year men who assembled in our lecture room to elect officers for the ensuing year. From our number, Mr. Shirley G. Dixon was the unanimous choice for fulfilling the laborious task of recording the minutes for the term and performing such other duties as arranging morning lectures, looking after dinners; in fact, all matters concerning the welfare of our class were entrusted into his hands.

It was early in November when Mr. D. F. Macnaughton, our football captain, selected the team to play the customary friendly game against the second and third years. Most of the men were easily managed by our captain, but it was only after much persuasion that Mr. "Bob" Moyse, our star half-back, gave up smoking between lectures; while Mr. S. G. Dixon, the centre scrimmage, complained of losing weight through not being allowed to smoke during meals. By the end of November the team was in pink of condition and every man somehow managed to get a real football suit. On the day when the great struggle was to take place we received communication from our opponents that owing to the fact that the snow could not be removed from the campus the game would have to be postponed to a future date. This greatly discouraged the class, the team stopped training and we all started "plugging" for the Christmas examinations.

The new year saw us all back again and the majority started to work seriously. The Dean kindly invited us in small groups to dine with him, while Prof. Surveyer tendered us a banquet at the Union.

Towards the end of the term Mr. Michael T. Burke was elected president of the Law Undergraduate Society for the next year, while T. B. Heney and H. E. Herschorn were elected as representatives to the "Annual Board."

The examinations came along in due course and Mr. G. F. Macnaughton lead the class. Mr. S. G. Dixon who evinced a great interest in the laws and customs of the Latins came head in Roman Law and incidently was handed $100 to defray the expense of further research.

When we returned after a pleasant vacation, our class was somewhat diminished due to unforeseen circumstances in the April examinations. However, as we took our lectures with the graduating year, we soon made new acquaintances. This year we had the privilege of having the vice-president and treasurer elected from our number. Mr. S. G. Dixon was the unanimous choice as vice-president, while in Mr. G. F. Macnaughton we placed our unbounded confidence to retain all contributions.

The most important event in our second year was the Junior Dance, and as members of the year '14 we were asked to send a representative to the Dance Committee. This pleasant duty was nobly performed by Mr. H. H. Scott who helped to make the dance the success it was. Tickets were at a premium and many were unable to attend, the number being limited.

This little history would be incomplete without mentioning the impromptu mock trial held on the first day of the month of November in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twelve at four o'clock of the afternoon. Mr. "Nixie" Newcombe was indicted under section 109 of the Criminal Code for inciting Indians, before the Honourable Justice Dan. P. Gilmour. The firm of McDougall and Elder defended the prisoner while Mr. Adrian Knatchbull Hugessen, K.C., conducted the prosecution. As the prisoner was unwilling to approach the dock it necessitated the Clerk of the Court in the person of Mr. Mulvena to use physical force in producing the accused. Constable Dixon, who made the arrest was the first witness called, told the court what a suspicious character the accused was. Several witnesses were called to testify as to the condition of the prisoner on the night of the arrest. In spite of the eloquent speeches made by counsels for the accused the learned judge found the prisoner guilty of the charge, but reserved sentence for a future sitting.

As we still have another year at college, it is hardly wise to prophesy, but the class of Law '14 can boast of having amongst its number the first McGill law student belonging to the fair sex. We wish her every success in her future career along with the rest of the members of '14 and may we all rise to such prominence that our Alma Mater will be proud to claim us as her graduates.

Law Dinner, February 1st, 1913

A NEW custom was adopted this year by holding the Annual Dinner during the college term instead of after the examinations in the spring. This change was welcomed by all since in past years it has been more a function for the graduating class than for the whole body of students. The Dinner Committee must be congratulated on the splendid manner in which everything was conducted.

DEATH OF DR. CAMERON

BY the sudden death of Dr. James Chalmers Cameron on March 10th, 1912, the Canadian Medical world, and McGill in particular, sustained a severe loss. Dr. Cameron did not even himself know that his health was seriously impaired. Some months previous to his death, he discovered by accident, that his blood pressure was unusually high, and upon advice he moderated somewhat his daily work.

Late on the night of Friday, he made a professional call during the heavy snowstorm that prevailed. Upon his return he suffered from a cerebral hemorrhage, and death was almost instantaneous.

Dr. Cameron was the son of the late Rev. James Y. Cameron, of Niagara Falls, and was born at Aultsville, January 18th, 1852. He was educated at Upper Canada College, where he was head boy in 1870. In 1874, he graduated in Medicine, when he was final prizeman. From graduation to April, 1877, he was an interne in the Montreal General Hospital. He then studied abroad for several years and in 1886, became Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Children. As Professor of Obstetrics, he was accoucheur-in-chief at the Montreal Maternity Hospital, and saw it grow under his direction, from humble quarters in St. Urbain Street to its present position as one of the largest and most influential institutions of the kind, in Canada.

Dr. Cameron was an accomplished physician, and in the special branch of Medicine to which he devoted his life, he had no superior. His taste in literature was fine, and as a lecturer he was remarkable for his fluency of speech and lucidity of statement.

The influence of his teachings, geniality of his person, and kindness of his spirit we have heard of from our predecessors, and although it was not our fortune as junior students to come in contact with him, we can appreciate the man and sympathize with those who knew him better and feel the personal loss more acutely.

Dr. Casey Wood

CASEY ALBERT WOOD, C.M., M.D., D.C.L., F.Z.S., one of America's greatest Ophthalmologists, late Head Professor of Ophthalmology in Northwestern University, Chicago, Ill., U.S.A., is a Canadian by birth, having been born in the Province of Ontario at Wellington, on the 21st November, 1856. His early education was obtained, for the greater part, in private schools, and in the Ottawa Collegiate Institute. He subsequently studied at the University of Bishop's College, and McGill; also in the Universities of Berlin, London, Paris and Vienna.

Prof. Casey Wood was for many years editor-in-chief of the "Annals of Ophthalmology." He is now one of the principal editors of the "Ophthalmic Record." He has written a large number of articles in medical and popular journals on ophthalmic subjects, and is the author of "Lessons in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Eye Diseases," and of "The Toxic Amblyopias; their Pathology and Treatment." He has also written numerous chapters in various textbooks.

Many honours have come to him, too many to mention in a short sketch such as this, let it suffice to say that he has deserved them all.

Prof. Wood has been particularly kind to the McGill Medical Library. Many generous gifts have been received from him. The following is from last year's report of the Library Committee:

"The year has been distinguished by an unusual number of valuable gifts, among the Casey Wood collection of 1,050 volumes, is the Latin translation (1489-1490 A.D.) of the general and ophthalmic writings of the Arabian Surgeon Abu Sina, otherwise Avicenna. This copy was prepared by Dionysius Boetus, coeval with Aldus, and is a good example of the early Venetian style of printing and binding. It occupied a year in making, and although it has been robbed of its medallions and clasps, it is in a fair state of preservation. The fourth book is devoted to the eye and its diseases."

In a recent letter to Dr. Shepherd, Dr. Wood said:

"I believe I have a complete list of all periodicals, ophthalmic literature, and I think we ought not to be satisfied with anything less than complete files of all these journals, reviews, etc. Eventually, of course, the Faculty Library will have the remainder of my collection which will give them almost all the older volumes."

The Beginnings of McGill

A RETROSPECT

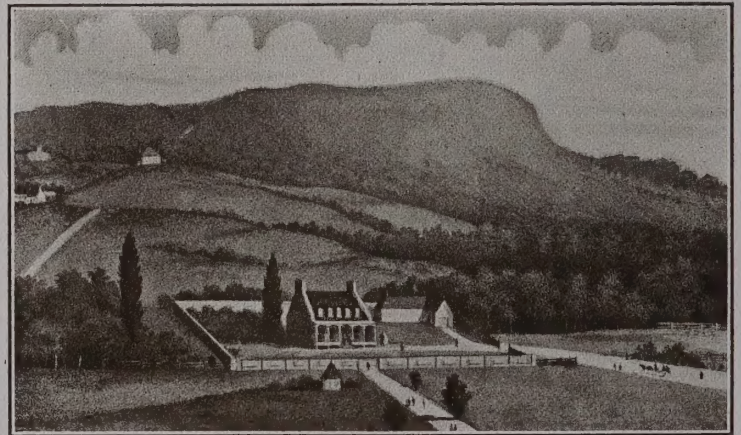

LIFE as it goes on today at our University has been described and pictured in this volume in all its many phases. About 2000 students, men and women, a teaching staff of over 200 members, and thousands of graduates scattered over the world constitute the McGill of the present. A score of handsome buildings in Montreal and at Ste. Anne form a fitting home for the University. An incorporated College in British Columbia represents McGill on the Pacific Coast. Amid these evidences of progress and public service it may not be uninteresting to go back for a few minutes to an earlier time, and to try and get some idea of Montreal over 80 years ago, when Old McGill was in her infancy, when Medicine was the only active Faculty, and when the modest house which it occupied on St. James Street, and "Burnside," a private residence, were the only University buildings.

James McGill

The Hon. James McGill, fur-trader, merchant, citizen, was a man of mark in the little English-speaking community in Montreal at the beginning of the last century. The cautious old Scotchman, whose eyes seem in his portrait almost to twinkle as they gaze from under his powdered wig, had vision as well as business acumen. Probably sharing the prevailing belief that a great educational scheme was about to be inaugurated in this Province by the Government, James McGill determined to provide for a college in connection with this proposed University. Long and carefully, we may be sure, did he ponder on the details of his plan. The institution was to bear his own name, and no professor or student was to be barred by religious test. In his will, dated 1811, the sum of £10,000 and the estate and house of "Burnside" were set aside for the purpose of endowing his college. The latter, according to a wisely inserted provision, must be established within 10 years of the testator's death.

James McGill passed away in 1813, just a century ago, and not for several years were his desires fulfilled. Other heirs claimed the property and litigation ensued. In 1829 the estate, but not the money, was finally awarded by the Privy Council to the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning, a somewhat shadowy body, incorporated in 1818, and apparently representing or replacing the more or less dormant scheme of a Government University. In the meantime, in 1821, under the aegis of the Royal Institution, McGill University had been chartered, and in 1823 some appointments had been made to its staff, but these seem to have been merely nominal and no teaching was done. To the University in 1829 was handed over "Burnside" by the Royal Institution. McGill had plenty of land, but very little money, the £10,000 not being secured until 1835. Both teachers and students, the most essential features of a college, were lacking.

"Burnside House." From a Watercolor Sketch by W. B. Lambe in 1842

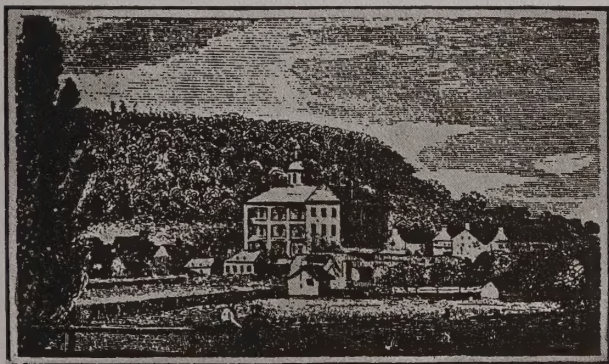

Montreal had at this period, 1829, a population of about 30,000 people. The city extended along the river bank from the neighborhood of the present Place Viger terminals to McGill Street. Below Place Viger lay the Quebec Suburbs, south of McGill Street those called St. Joseph and Recollect, while above Lagauchetiere and Dorchester streets stretched the scattered houses and gardens of the St. Lawrence suburbs, extending far up the hill into the country. Commissioners Street faced a beach, the ships lying out and landing their cargoes over long gangways. The business life of the city—for Montreal was an important distributing center and controlled much of the western fur trade—centered chiefly on St. Paul and Notre Dame Streets, although the Bank of Montreal stood on St. James Street, where the Post Office rises today. Near it a disused cemetery sloped back to Craig. Along this future artery of traffic ran an open ditch. On Notre Dame Street were situated the Court House and Jail, where executions took place, and the Chateau de Ramezay—even then considered old—which served as the Governor's residence. Many a stately reception and gay revel must the ancient house have witnessed, standing then as it stands today, in outward appearance at least but little affected by the passing of the years. At the corner of St. Paul Street and St. Suplice lay the Hotel Dieu, founded in 1644, almost coincident with the birth of the city itself. Notre Dame church was opened for public worship in this year, 1829, but the twin towers which now form its most striking feature were not added until some years later.

The streets, even then noted for mud and dust, were lighted at night with oil lamps. A waterworks system was in operation, but many of the inhabitants continued to use their wells or obtained water from carriers. Railways, street cars, automobiles, skyscrapers were wanting, but the city presented a prosperous and busy appearance. From the sombre warehouses goods were distributed through all the surrounding country. The citizens were men of enterprise and action and carried their trade in to the far Northwest. Men walked the streets who had wintered at distant Chippewyan, or had crossed the Rockies to the Pacific slope. The Lachine canal, opened in 1825, gave a waterway to Upper Canada. Four-horse stage coaches furnished a regular and fairly convenient and expeditious means of travel by land. Steamboats had already been introduced on the river.

Parts of the city now most familiar to McGill men were at that time not in existence. Westmount was an undreamed of possibility. Above Dorchester Street, except in the neighborhood of St. Lawrence, sloped fields and orchards, with here and there a steep-roofed farmhouse and its outbuildings, or the country mansion of some wealthy citizen. The site of the future University was occupied by the spreading acres of "Burnside," the valuable property which James McGill had in 1811 bequeathed to the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning. Burnside House stood somewhere near the corner of the present McGill College Avenue and Burnside Place.

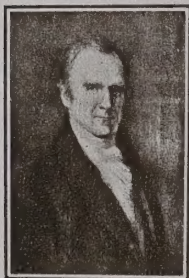

A group of shrewd Scotch merchants constituted the business powers of Montreal. They and their families, together with the gayer official set, formed the center around which the social life of the English speaking inhabitants revolved. British officers—regular troops then garrisoned the city—contributed a brilliant but somewhat "fast" element. Many of the clergymen and professional men had been educated abroad. The society of the day, although isolated from the main currents of European and American thought, did not lack culture.

The Montreal General Hospital was established in 1819, the outgrowth of an earlier charity known as the House of Recovery. In 1822 the nucleus of the present group of buildings was opened. In 1832, after extensive additions had been made, the capacity of the Hospital was 160 beds. For nearly a century this splendid institution has ministered to the public welfare, and for over 80 years it has been closely associated with McGill.

Montreal General Hospital, From "Hochalaga Depicta" 1839

Wm. Robertson
M.D.
1784-1844

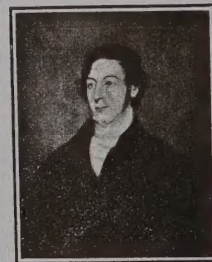

On the staff of the Hospital were four men whose names should ever remain notable in the history of our University, Dr. William Robertson was one of the city's leading practitioners. His ripe wisdom and long experience, he was already well up in years, meant much to the hospital and to the college which he helped to found. He became the first Professor in the Medical Faculty of McGill. Dr. John Stephenson, a man of fighting spirit and brusque speech, had recently returned from thorough preparation in Europe and was essaying the difficult paths of practice. After years of sturdy struggle on the University's behalf he became the Medical Faculty's first Registrar. Dr. Caldwell, another name connected with the early history of McGill, died of typhus in 1832, the cholera year, and thus did not live to see the full fruition of his labors. Dr. Andrew F. Holmes, thoughtful scholar and Christian gentleman, a man of singularly attractive personality, had enjoyed the best that the Old World could give in the way of medical education, graduating at Edinburgh in 1819. He took a prominent part in the work of the Faculty, becoming Dean of Medicine in 1854. His name has come down to us in the Holmes Gold Medal, the highest distinction obtainable in the Faculty of Medicine.

These men, associated with one or two others, were instrumental in organizing in 1823 the Montreal Medical Institution, and they served as its first teachers. The session opened Nov. 15th, 1824. Lectures were delivered at the house of the Institution on St. James street, and at the General Hospital, where clinics were given. Twenty-five budding medicos made up the student body this first year. Dr. Caldwell lectured on the Principles and Practice of Medicine; Surgery, Anatomy, and Physiology were handled by Dr. Stephenson, Midwifery and Diseases of Children by Dr. Robertson; Dr. Holmes took up the subjects of Chemistry, Pharmacy, and Materia Medica. A modest measure of success rewarded the efforts of the founders. Regular sessions were held until 1829, when the Montreal Medical Institution was constituted the Faculty of Medicine of McGill University.

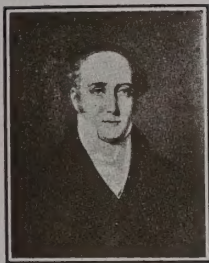

The latter, as already noted, had received its charter in 1821, but was still far from being in actual operation. After years of harassing litigation part of the endowment was secured, but it will be remembered that a time clause had been attached to the gift. In 1829, probably mainly for the purpose of starting active work and thus fulfilling the condition, the University took to itself the Montreal Medical Institution. Dr. Robertson was made professor, Drs. Caldwell, Holmes and Stephenson, lecturers, in the new Faculty. For the first time McGill began to exert a real educational influence, and this was exercised solely by the Medical Faculty, the others being moribund.

The work in Medicine continued to be conducted on St. James Street, at first probably in the house of the Institution, No. 20, east of Place d'Armes, and later in "the tall narrow three story building which stood between the old Bank of Montreal and the cemetery." The M. G. H. was used for clinics, as before.

The Ven. Archdeacon Mountain was the first Principal of McGill University. Lectures in Arts were started soon after this period but for many years Medicine remained the largest and most active Faculty, the firm basis of the University's fame and prosperity.

John Stephenson, M.D.

To many a student arriving by boat from Laprairie or by stage from Lachine, the bustling little city must have seemed like a metropolis. The public buildings, the churches, the many fine residences, the busy commercial life would all be remarked by one accustomed to the forest-girt villages of the Eastern Townships and Upper Canada. Along Notre Dame Street, crowded with shoppers and promenaders, ladies in gay apparel, gallants with high white hats, redcoated officers, perhaps a regiment of British regulars would pass with the inspiring crash of martial music, or the Governor ride in State with his coach and four. Entering the Medical Building on St. James Street, the freshman might possibly have been greeted by a predecessor of the great Cook, and solemnly initiated into the lore of bones and subs. An occasional afternoon might be more pleasantly spent in converse with a professor's daughter in one of the fragrant gardens or walking on the Champ de Mars, which, bordered by stiff Normandy poplars, commanded a famous view of the mountain slopes. Students held a place in the life of that formal age, just as they do in the activities of to-day. Staid citizens were not allowed to forget that Montreal was a college town.

May 24th, 1833, was an important date in the history of the struggling College, for on that day its first degree was conferred on Mr. W. Logie, a student of medicine. Two decades had passed since James McGill's demise, the way had been hard, the friends of education often almost in despair, but the long years were over. Old McGill was at last more than a dream, more than a merely projected institution of learning. It was an established University in successful operation.

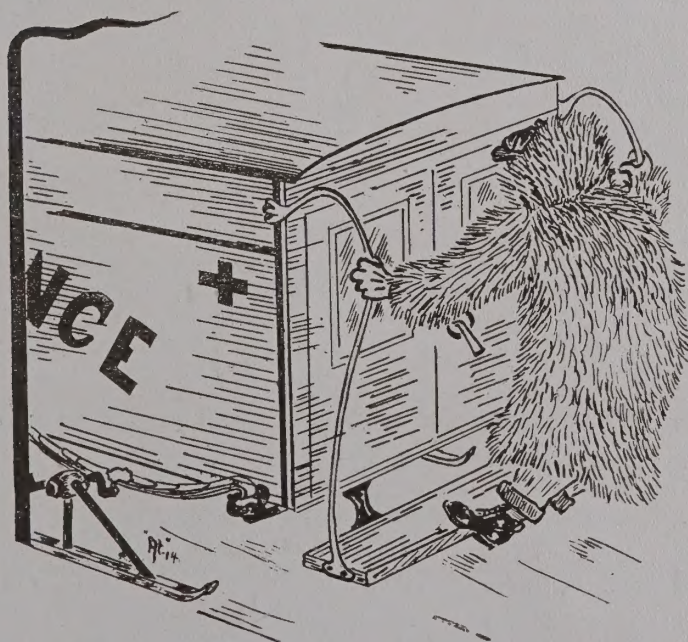

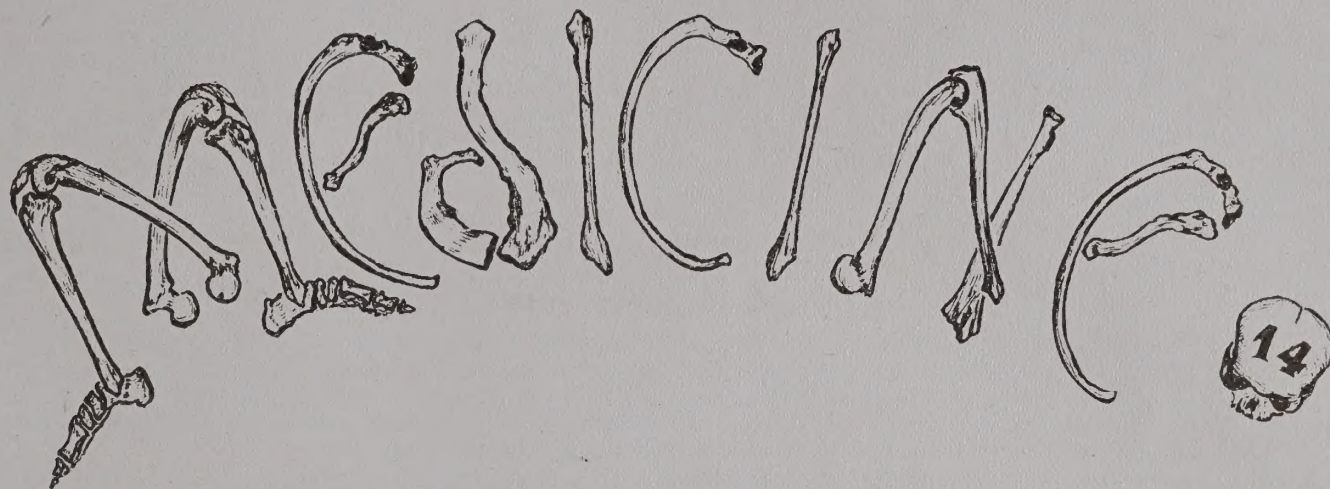

The writer begs to acknowledge with thanks the help ungrudgingly given in the preparation of this article by Miss Charlton, Librarian of the McGill Medical Faculty, and by Miss Thomson, of Westmount, a lady whose wonderful memory goes back over more than fourscore years. Among other authorities the following were used :—"Hochelaga Depicta," 1839; Dr. Hall's sketch of Dr. Holmes and the early history of the Med. Fac.; "Past, Present, and Future," by Dr. Joseph Workman, (McGill '35); and Dr. Maude Abbott's valuable monograph on the History of the Med. Fac. (Montreal Medical Journal, Aug., 1902). From this last work the illustrations have been reproduced.

HISTORY OF PRESENT ILLNESS

FIRST noticed four years ago (Nov. 1909) a feeling of medio studiosis, which gradually became worse until the middle of December of that year. Considerable pain was present in most of the heads, with marked tension and congestion; they were tapped quite thoroughly and a large quantity of knowledgious fluid was withdrawn, after which came a feeling of exuberance with illusions and hallucinations of a temporary character, which came on between nine and one in the evening and passed off toward morning, being followed the next day by headache, nausea and general malaise.

Nothing in particular was then noticed until along in March, 1910, when another attack came on very similar to the first one, only much more pronounced and severe. After numerous tappings and the removal of a much larger quantity of similar knowledgious fluid the tension and congestion was greatly relieved, but the hallucinations and after effects were much more marked. For five months then the rest cure was tried, which helped some of the heads very much, but toward the middle of December Medicine Fourteen again had a very severe attack, Organitis Ruttanicus being one of the most prominent symptoms, also a failure of compensation. Many of the heads were very much weakened by these repeated attacks, but after a complete rest of two weeks with gradual increasing injections of Bacillus Knowledgeosis most of the heads were strengthened sufficiently to withstand the next attack, which came on in the spring of 1911, but several had so degenerated that Dr. M. D. McGill was forced to amputate, but the heads lost by Medicine Fourteen were replaced to a certain extent by grafting from Medicine Thirteen. Similar attacks have come on regularly every Christmas and spring until this year when there was only a very mild attack, which was relieved immediately by one small tapping followed by practically no bad after effects.

Through, probably, the carelessness of one of Dr. McGill's assistants, when quite an extensive plastic operation was being performed early this fall, a mild local infection was set up by the invasion of the comparatively harmless Varsitus Bacillus or Bacillus Torontocynaeous, and a slight swelling was caused in the GENERAL glands. Also around the GENERAL area marked symptoms of Toastus Beanobagitis are present.

PERSONAL HISTORY

At the age of one year Medicine Fourteen had a slight attack of areata pigmentosum, which became slightly more pronounced in the second year. Certain areas also show a marked diathesis to obesity, slight probosis magnus, and other alpecia simplex.

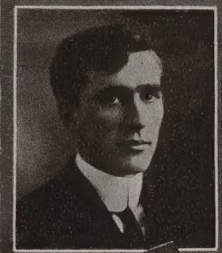

Habits irregular.

Tobacco and alcohol quantum sufficit.

Occupation necessitates considerable night work, causing pronounced mental and also physical fatigue.

King Cook Celebration, 1912

ON Thursday night, February 22nd, the Pretender and Regent, H.R.H. Prince Pharmacologius Tobin was crowned amidst all the pomp and vanity of this wicked world. On this occasion it was the giant midget Tobin who by his Coronation became King Cook III of the Medicos. He comes of a Royal line of Reprobates and because of his grave and dignified bearing is eminently suited to control the affairs of his realm. About a hundred Medical Freshmen and Sophomores fell in line for the triumphant march. When all was ready the King appeared in regalia with his dignitaries and officers in close attendance. The procession proceeded along Sherbrooke, down Union, along St. Catherine to Peel, up Peel and thence to the Union where a banquet was awaiting the King and his subjects.

Amid the impressive and awed silence of his vassals, King Cook stalked to his seat at the Banquet Table. He was followed closely by his Guards of Honor, Lieuts. Griffith and Roberts, of the 2nd Medical Rangers. The Dignitaries of the Church, the High Priest of the Infernal Regions Bayne, with the Satanic Princes, Knowles, Urquhart, Mingie, together with his H.R.H. Guards of Honor sat on either side of his Majesty at the head of the table. Mr. Laing, owing to the absence of Mr. Martin, Pres. of Med. 15, acted as Chairman.

After the sumptuous repast of such dishes as Scillium Putridum, Tetanized frogs legs, Cafe Parisien, Sago Beans a l'axone and Seidlitz Powders, etc., the toast to the King was drunk and then the new King was introduced. As it would be impossible in one night to set forth his manifold virtues the chairman simply spoke a few words before his Coronation. A last toast was drunk to him as Tobin before he should assume his new role of King Cook. He was now escorted from his seat at the banquet table to the throne by his two able Guards of Honor. A low murmur of applause ran around the Hall at the majestic bearing of their sovereign and also at the noble and regal manner with which he carried his 4 ft. 9 inches.

A most impressive Coronation Speech was delivered by High Priest Bayne, G.D.T., T.G.I.P., and amidst a breathless silence High Priest Knowles reverently placed the Crown upon the ignoble brow of his most insignificant, inebriated and worthless Majesty King Cook III. King Cook looked around in a dazed manner, thanked his bowing subjects for the dishonor they had bestowed upon him and promised faithfully to do all those things he ought not to do.

The next "Catastrophe" which took place was the installation of King Cook by reason of his celestial alliances as President of the Chinese Republic. Prince Beelzebub Urquhart delivered the address. In this he reviewed his life history, stating that according to tradition, Cook had originated by evolution from certain Nitrogen Atoms from an ancient mule in Griffintown into one of the most imbecillic booze imbibing corrupt specimens of any Royal Line in existence. In the early stages of his life he was swallowed putrefactive organism and for exceeding the speed limit around the Nitrogen cycle, was arrested by Captain Kidney and deported as undesirable Amino Acids. Eventually by his careful mismanagement he entered the Crural Canal and finally embarking in his good Navicularis sailed up the Spinal Column and then began his eventful voyage through the brain where he met with every mishap it was possible to meet. He survived and at last by a peculiar metamorphosis became a type of a human being.

"And now on behalf of the Chinese people we make you, you pauperized, emaciated cartoon of an anthropoid, Onlee Wun Lung, President of the Chinese Republic, and we sincerely trust you may live long and untroubled by Haemorrhoids, Cold Feet Insanity or any diseases to which human flesh is heir." He then collected his annual tribute from his subjects in the form of a Chop Suey bowl and chop sticks.

The King condescended to entertain his vassals upon the banjo, and then sang his famous song "I want to go tomorrow." George, Prince of the Cold Meat House, upheld his reputation as a narrator. Some of the King's most loyal supporters vented their enthusiasm in the shape of "Turkey Trots," etc.

"Pipes Out."

A Most Surprising Theolog

PERHAPS it may be that the vision some pages back of a theolog, wildly excited in the performance of his ministrations, has startled some of our readers. It would indeed be sad if this were the type of Christian minister our colleges are turning out to-day. We think it is not.

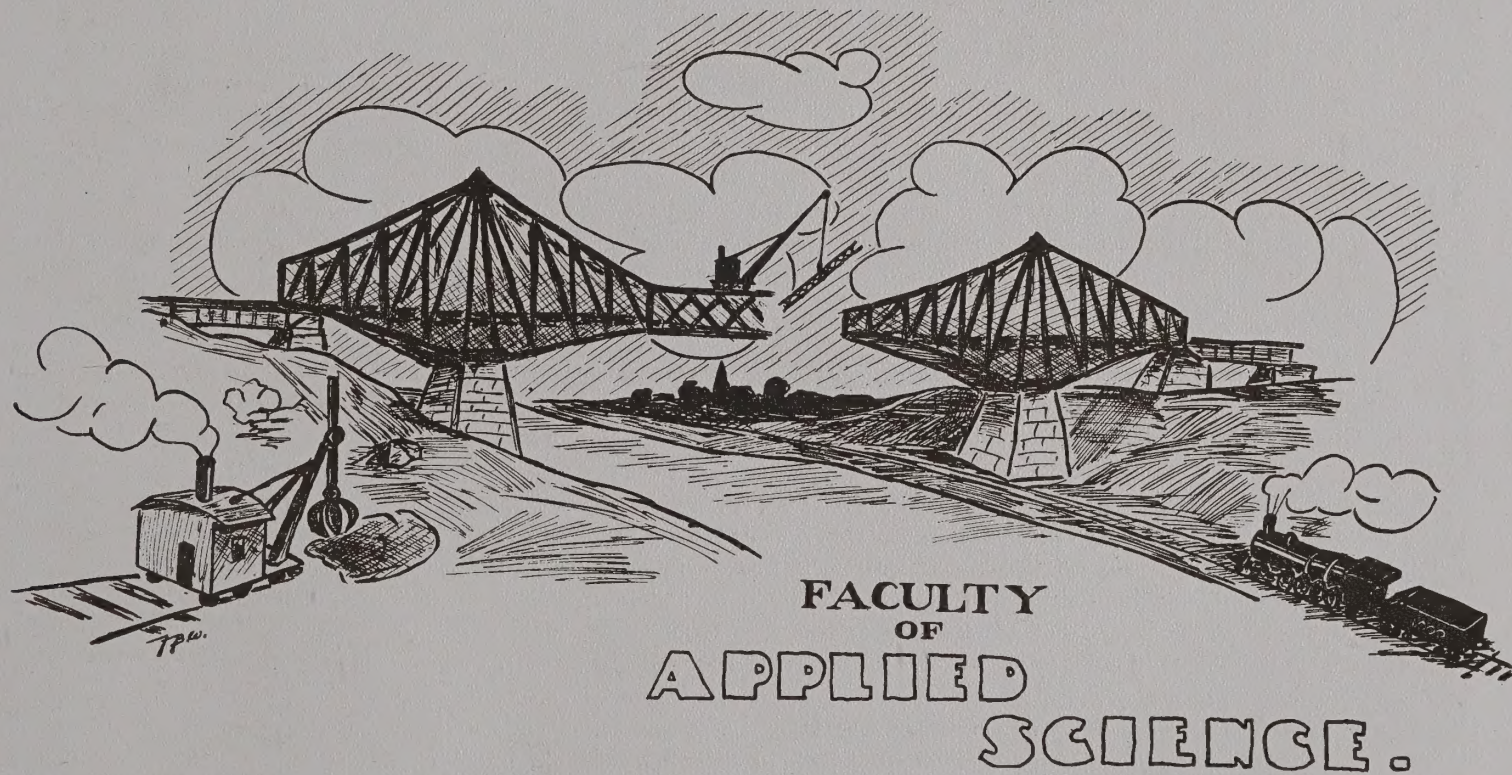

It seems to us that the character and attitude of the men who are to fill our pulpits form a more or less true criterion of the moral life of the nation. It is with this in view that we inquire whether the men who are receiving their theological training at McGill are all that we could wish to have them. Unfortunately the theolog is a much maligned and misunderstood creature—partially, perhaps, through his own fault. At McGill they come to us from England, from Newfoundland and the Eastern Provinces, as well as a few from the West. Most of them are older than the average student, and are working their way through college under circumstances, often, of particular hardship and self-sacrifice. Over half the men at the colleges here take charge of a mission or a small church during the winter months, and we presume that preparing two sermons a week as well as regular and often double studies is no small undertaking, although we have never experimented ourselves.

Thus the theolog has some defence when accused of too little interest in so-called "college activity." However, Messrs. Theologs, you do become too much wrapped up in your own little college affairs, and regard yourselves merely as students of the Wesleyan or the Presbyterian college, missing the broad outlook of the student of Greater McGill. We are hoping that the affiliation of the colleges may go far in ridding you of this provincialism. Such gatherings as the Peterboro Missionary Conference have helped to show the theologs that they and the college Y. M. C. A. are really working toward the same end.

Some men—for instance, Bill Hughes, Jim Holmes, Harry Logan, Bill McConnell, Donald MacGuire, and yes, we'll include Ernest F. L. Henson, and numerous others—these men find time to take part in "outside" work, and feel they are better for so doing. Canada to-day is calling to fill her pulpits men who are real leaders in thought and in action. "No man liveth unto himself alone." Where can a man find better training for the duties of the modern pastor than in mixing with his classmates of to-day, who are to be his laymen of to-morrow? And conversely, we feel that the whole tone of college life might be elevated by men inspired with such high ideals as many—we wish we could say "all"—of the theologs.

So we find in the theologs a very great deal which is to be admired. We find also much room for improvement. We have offered advice and hope it may be received in the kindly spirit with which it is given. We refuse to believe that the embryonic preachers at McGill resemble in the slightest that most surprising theolog who adorns the heading of this section—except in one particular, that they have equal power to "set on fire" the moral and spiritual life of the nation.

Science 1914 Class History

IT was a case of the wearing of the green with a vengeance when we assembled to college in the fall of 1910 for the faculty had decided that owing to the increased cost of high living, the fees must be raised. After depositing our roll of greenbacks with the bursar we sallied forth to interview the Dean, but found on application that Freshmen might register in the Faculty room.

Our first trial of strength was with the Sophs, who had decided to treat us to a bandage rush. With the memory of younger days fresh upon us, when we had played the bad man in juvenile cowboy outfits we sallied forth and proceeded to rope them up in approved style. When the dust had cleared from the battlefield fifty-five sophs were found resting placidly in the morgue, whereas they had captured but nineteen. The cup given by Mr. Millen, therefore, came into our possession.

The following officers were elected: A. Ribadeneyra, president; E. F. Troop, vice-president; C. H. Harding, secretary; George Draper, treasurer. After much discussion it was decided, that in view of the length of his name, it would not be unparliamentary to address the president as "Tony."

Theatre night was a dismal failure from a policeman's standpoint, principally because, while the students were engaged in painting the West End red, the hordes of Chief Campeau were massed in expectation on the Main street. We sincerely hope that none of them caught cold during their long wait, as the night was chilly.

On our return to college in the second year we found that the pass mark had been raised from forty to fifty. It was a tribute no doubt to the excellent work done by the class, but it cannot be expected that all should wax enthusiastic over the change. We also decided to abolish the rush. It has been difficult to make out position appreciated by outsiders particularly those who were not at the smoker the freshmen gave us. We feel, judging from the amount of criticism levelled at us that the change was a great one, and we believe that it is a change for the better. Our officers were: President, Pep Paisely; vice-president, C. H. Harding; secretary, K. F. Keeping; treasurer, Jack Summerskill. Theatre night was held and it must be admitted that it was a failure. The function has now been abolished.

In our third year we elected the following: President, K. F. Keeping; vice-president, B. A. MacFarlane; secretary, H. P. Stanley; treasurer, H. J. McLeod. Keeping indignantly denies all charges of stuffing the ballot box and claims he ran on a straight Liberal-Democratic ticket. Our class this year is split up into many sections, the civils being the most numerous.

Our class has always excelled at sports, but as it would be unfair to pick any individuals and to give all our achievements would render this history a mere catalogue of athletic accomplishments, we now bring our tale to a conclusion with the remark that we are pursuing the even tenour of our way disturbed only by examinations and occasional outbursts of rough house.

Amalgamation of the Departments of Chemistry

ANOTHER sign of the essential unity which binds together the various faculties of McGill into one great University comes in the appointment of Dr. R. F. Ruttan as Macdonald Professor of Chemistry, and Joint Director of the Chemistry and Mining Building, filling the place left vacant through the untimely resignation of Dr. Walker.

Professor Ruttan is no stranger to McGill men, as for some years he has occupied the Chair of Organic and Biological Chemistry in the Faculty of Medicine. Whereas formerly the Department of Medicine Chemistry and the Department of Chemistry of Arts and Applied Science have been entirely separate, they are now brought together under one central staff, although laboratories are still maintained in the different buildings. It is believed that this arrangement will facilitate the work of the Department, and tend toward even greater efficiency in a study in which McGill has long held a high place.

Dr. Ruttan was born at Napanee, Ont., in 1857, and received his degree of B.A. from Toronto University. He then entered the Faculty of Medicine at McGill from which he graduated in 1885, carrying off the Gold Medal for Chemistry. After studying for two years under Hofmann at the University of Berlin Dr. Ruttan returned to McGill to become lecturer in Medical Chemistry. This position he held from 1887 until 1891 when he was appointed Professor of Practical Chemistry, and Registrar of the Faculty of Medicine. In 1902 he was promoted to the Chair of Organic and Biological Chemistry.

Ever since coming to McGill Dr. Ruttan has enjoyed a great measure of popularity, having always manifested a keen interest in undergraduate activity and in the welfare of McGill generally. His students, past and present, join in wishing "Bobby" Ruttan much happiness and success in his new appointment.

Survey

Camp

1912

Survey Camp

WITH the closing days of August there came back to McGill the Civils and Miners of Science '14, many of them sunburnt and strong after a summer spent with construction gang or prospecting party in the great new country. To some the pleasure of once more meeting their classmates was dimmed by the vision of approaching "sups." However, these were soon over and everyone settled down to work.

On Monday, Sept. 2, survey parties were organized, and eighty of us set out for camp at Cartierville. Those who had anticipated a month of recreation were sorely disappointed, for hard work, and lots of it, was the order of the day. The tents, as usual, were located at Bord a Plouffe on the banks of the Riviere des Prairies. While not perhaps rivalling some metropolitan hotels, yet these tents were comfortable enough to suit even the most fastidious surveyor. A little inventive genius easily constructed heating appliances, and lanterns could be obtained when needed through a simple raid on the '15 marquee. "Grub" was, as in former years, quite plentiful and of reasonable variety. The market gardeners of the neighborhood were certainly aware of the influx of eighty hungry men. Lunches were brought to us while at work on the level courses, and the quantity and quality seemed to vary directly as the distance from camp—the fellows nearer home having a wider range of selection. Unfortunately, the farmers nearby had profited by the experience of former years, and the apple crop was gathered in before we made our appearance. Thus we missed what had always been a pleasant and convenient means of supplementing the Commissariat.

The work of the surveyor is for the most part, interesting and pleasant. This year as usual the river work proved the most popular. However, space will not permit here a recital of all the ins and outs of the survey camp. The weather man seemed to have a grudge against us, forcing us to suspend work on several occasions. Fortunately, theatre parties, under the chaperoning of Mr. Mills, relieved the monotony of the rainy days in camp. Then, too, every week we were treated to an evening performance by the youthful singers and athletes of Science '15. The item which called forth most applause, perhaps, was a clever demonstration of Boy Scout work. As in the past, extreme cases called for immersion in the river, but on the whole the performances were highly creditable considering the age and intellectual attainments of the instigators.

About the middle of the month came the memorable Cartierville fire, at which some of our men rendered excellent aid to the local fire department. In spite of this "virtue was its own reward," for the firemen went so far as to intimate that some of the boys had in their possession nozzles and other parts of the fire apparatus.

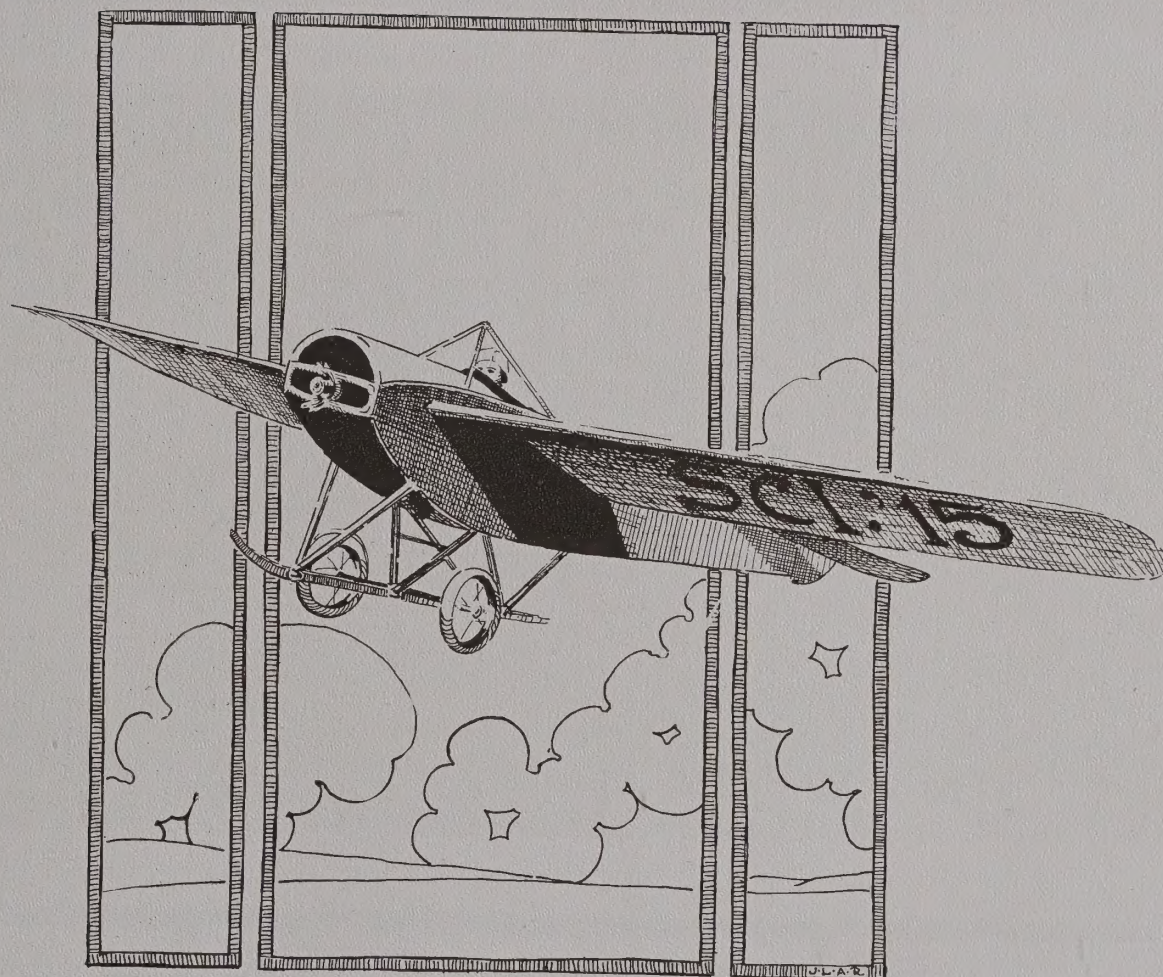

A little later some unpleasantness with the citizens of Cartierville developed into a more serious affair, although not nearly so serious as the Montreal press would have us believe. Stories appearing under flaring headlines in certain Montreal papers were just as amusing and incredible to us who had engaged in the fray, as to those who heard of it for the first time. As usual, an over zealous "arm of the law" was largely responsible for the disturbance. On hearing of this man's work the camp resolved itself into a committee of the whole to go over and get satisfaction. An amicable agreement was arrived at after an argument somewhat heated on both sides. In addition to their persuasive powers the enemy had the services of the fire-brigade who used their streams with almost as telling effect as at the recent fire. Many were the rumors of a return visit to the camp by the young "bloods" of the parish, but wiser heads prevailed, and hostilities were not renewed, although for several nights pickets were placed about the camp in order to summon the garrison in case of an attack.

Sports Day was held on Sept. 21, and proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the Cartierville Camp. World's records were broken in many events, but because there was no official representative of the C.A.A.U. present, credit could not be given to the worthy athletes. Mention must here be made of the perhaps more than usually airy costumes of the athletes.

Prof. Lamb was once more in charge of the camp, and to his efforts no little of its success is due. He was ably assisted in the work by several demonstrators.

Camp broke up on Saturday, the 28th of September, and all but those who were fortunate enough to be able to compete for the McCarthy Prize, came back to McGill ready for a winter of work.

THE Railway Club was organized this fall by the members of the Transportation Course, and though young boasts of a large and enthusiastic number of followers. The objects of the Club are to bring together all men in any department of the University who are interested in railway work, to present papers from prominent officials, and to make trips to the various large factories and shops in the neighbourhood of Montreal.

The Club has already passed a most successful season, both in the matter of meetings and of trips. The Angus Shops, The Canadian Steel Foundries, The Harbour and various other places have been visited much to the satisfaction of all concerned.

At the time of writing the officials of the Club have in view a most pleasing and extended programme for the ensuing term and all things point to a successful year for this Club.

The Mining Trip

A GOODLY crowd gathered at the Windsor Station on the evening of May 4th to start the Miners of '13 on their long journey across the continent. As the train pulled out the McGill yell was given and we bade farewell to Montreal for another summer.

We reached North Bay the next morning, Sunday, and after an hour left for Cobalt by the T. & N. O. Ry. Going into Cobalt several of us had our first look at mines, but before the week was over they were no longer novelties.

On Thursday we left Cobalt for North Bay again, where we spent several hours and had our first baseball practice. We left at eleven o'clock for Winnipeg and everyone managed to get back to the train in time to leave. Winnipeg was reached Sunday noon and after a short two hours we were again travelling, our next stop being Lethbridge, Alta., which we reached Monday afternoon. Tuesday morning we went underground at the Gault Collieries, leaving in the afternoon for Bellevue where we stayed overnight to see the Frank Slide.

The next day was spent in walking over the slide and climbing Turtle Mountain to have a look at the slide from above. Nearly everyone will remember the sulphur baths at the sanatorium or at least they will remember the sanatorium itself. Thursday was spent at Coleman going over the mine and plant at the Dennison collieries and Friday morning we moved on to Moyie. At Moyie we did our surveying in some of the abandoned workings of the St. Eugene Mine.

Sunday afternoon the ball team succeeded in defeating the local club 11-2, the feature of the game being a keg of beer for third base. The next evening the trip turned out en masse to a dance given for them by the baseball club and a big night was the result, with startling developments in the way of orators and bartenders, not to mention callow screens. After having our picture taken in the mine we left for Kootenay Landing and Proctor, where we spent the night.

The following day was spent in the Bluebell Mine at Riondel, returning to Nelson in the evening and going from there to Trail, where we went through the smelter and refinery.

On Thursday evening we paid a visit to the bunk-house where the McGill men of Trail gave us a very pleasant evening. The 24th was also spent in Trail and in the evening we went on to Rossland. Here we spent Saturday on the surface at the Centre Star Mine. In the evening we were entertained at a smoker in the Rossland Club, given by the McGill men of Rossland and Trail, and that night will be long remembered by all.

We left Rossland on Tuesday, and after a day in Phoenix and one in Greenwood, the trip broke up in the latter place on May 31st.

BYGONES!

1.—When we were young in College,
And poor in all save Youth
And the divine endeavour—
The student's quest of Truth,
Life held a radiant vision
Forged in the Future's flame,
For you had dreams of social-good,
And I had thoughts of fame.

2.—When we were young in College,
Ah, these were halcyon years,
With our clubs and plays and lectures,
Our victor'd toils and fears;
We joyed in the modest tea-rooms,
Beyond the crowd's disdain,
While I told you of my dreamings
And my castles built in Spain.

3.—When we were young in College,
Our wants were dear and long,
Yet life was ever Springtime
And love a May-day song;
We laughed away the shadows
With Merlin's Magic Gleam,
For my hope was in your vision,
Your faith was in my dream.

4.—Alas, those days have vanished,
Sad changes Time has wrought,
We're old to-day on Sherbrooke Street,
And rich with car and yacht;
Yet when the football madness
Comes with the fading year,
Oh, to be young in old McGill,
With you and dreams, my dear!

"McGill Daily," Vol. II.

THE "McGill Daily" has now successfully completed the second year of its existence. In spite of the doubts and fears that were expressed when the scheme of a daily newspaper in connection with the University was first proposed, the "McGill Daily" has not only held its own, but has risen, in one bound, to be superior to most, and equal to any, college newspaper on the continent. This is a sweeping statement to make. There are in all nineteen college dailies in the United States and Canada, but one has only to compare them with our publication to be convinced of the truth of this claim.

The "McGill Daily," as many now at college will remember, is the outcome of several more or less unsuccessful attempts in journalism. "The Outlook" and "The Martlet" both were published in the form of a weekly magazine and as such were neither distinguished for their excellence nor their success. It was therefore somewhat hazardous to start a daily where a weekly had failed. The great success, however, which has attended the establishment of the Daily has fully justified the move.

The editor has been more ambitious this year than before. Instead of publishing only four times a week as heretofore, the Daily, as its name implies, has appeared every day but Sunday. Nor has this meant that the high standard of excellence set up by its predecessors has not been maintained. Our paper is noted for its comprehensiveness. "All the news of the University, all the time" has been the watchword of the editors. Athletics, as one of the most important features of college and intercollegiate activities, has naturally received much attention. Not only have the football and hockey games been well chronicled, but important events in other cities have been reported by special correspondents.

The news of the theatres has been good and the reports and criticisms of plays from week to week have been, for soundness of judgment and candidness of expression, the equal of those published in many of the Montreal papers.

The editorials, too, have manifested a distinct literary quality which has contributed not a little to the general high tone of the paper. It is no small tribute to the "McGill Daily" to have whole items and editorials reprinted verbatim in the large newspapers of this city and of Toronto, yet such has often been the case.

Mention also must be made of the extra Christmas number. Printed on good paper, with a special cover design, and replete with drawings, stories and well-printed photographs, the Christmas Daily reached a point never before reached in journalistic excellence at McGill. Great credit is due to the Editor-in-Chief, Mr. W. L. Cassels, whose own personal care and energy was responsible for the Christmas edition. To the Editor-in-Chief also is due the success which the Daily has experienced during the past year. It is safe to say that were it not for his personal ability and untiring energy, combined with the experience gained as one of the editors of the paper in 1911-12, the Daily would not have occupied the position it does to-day. Credit is also due to the staff of editors and reporters who have so faithfully laboured to produce the paper even when news was scarce and college studies were pressing. As President of the Daily, Mr. H. W. Morgan has sacrificed much time and energy in establishing the paper on a sound financial basis.

Room still remains for improvement. A higher literary quality in the news reports is still to be sought. It is to be hoped, in addition, that when the Daily has become a "money-maker" on a firm basis, that it will be possible by means of an Associated Press wire to publish up-to-date news of the world around us.

These suggestions, however, in no way detract from the present praise. The Daily will continue to prosper and improve, because it has proved itself to be necessary and indispensable to the unity and prosperity of McGill.

Junior Dance

THE 1914 Junior Dance was held on Friday evening, November twenty-second, and proved an unqualified success. The simple yet artistic decorations and the excellence of the supper were noticeable features of this the most important social function of the year. The committee is to be heartily commended for their work.

Canadian Officers' Training Corps

FOR years the British War Office has been interested in University graduates and has endeavoured to arrange for them to go into the Territorials—corresponding to our Active Militia. To aid in this work University regiments were formed and instruction given in military subjects. After some years the War Office felt that these regiments were not filling the place they should, and as the result of much thought it was decided that Officers' Training Corps should replace the old-time units of Militia.

The object of the Officers' Training Corps is to prepare and train the University undergraduate so that upon graduation, or after, he can join, as an officer, any of the infantry units in the country. Thus the War Office has in reserve a large number of trained officers for use in time of war, and the University graduate is prepared to serve his country to the best advantage should occasion arise.

In Canada there are at present Militia Corps at Queen's and Varsity. McGill, however, has not had a Militia Corps in the past, and hers is the honour of organizing the first Canadian Officers Training Corps. The object of the C.O.T.C. is the same as that of the Officers' Training Corps of Great Britain, viz., to train University undergraduates in the art of leading and commanding men.

The McGill Regiment of the C.O.T.C. was organized at a mass meeting held October 10th, 1912, Principal Peterson acting as Chairman. Col. Crowe, Commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and Col. English, Staff Officer of the 4th Div., Montreal, addressed the meeting, after which fifty men signified their intention of joining.

Under the regulations of the Militia Department, the Officer Commanding and the Adjutant must be members of the University Staff.

The establishment authorized by the Militia Department for the Corps is 59 men of all ranks per company, four companies forming a battalion. The present authorized establishment of the C.O.T.C. is two companies, and we hope before spring to apply for the equipment necessary for additional companies.

The equipment supplied by the Government lends itself to the making of a smart looking regiment, and consists of drab serge tunic, cap, great coat, puttees, Bedford cord breeches, Ross rifle, M.II., two stars, and belt, bayonet, etc., complete.

There are nearly 100 members on the regimental list and the numbers are continually increasing.

Through the kindness of Col. Cauthe, of the 5th Royal Highlanders, the regiment parades and drills in their Armoury on Bleury Street, but it is hoped that before long The McGill Canadian Officers' Training Corps will have an Armoury of its own.

THE season of 1912-13 has been the most successful in the history of the Union in many ways. The introduction of the Universal Fee, which makes every undergraduate a member of the Union, enables a great many more to enjoy the privileges which Sir William Macdonald always intended for the whole student body. Thus it is particularly gratifying to note that the Union is becoming more than ever a centre of student activity.

Perhaps the best feature of the Union this year has been the greatly improved service in the Dining and Grill rooms. With special Saturday evening dinners, afternoon teas and orchestra, there seems to be no limit to the possibilities of J. M. Shew as a caterer. Mr. Shew by skilful management gives better meals for less money than have been seen at the Union for many a day.

The great reason, however, for the success of the Union this year is the capable and energetic way in which Mr. Adrian Knatchbull-Hugessen, the President, Mr. James C. Lee, the Vice-President, and the whole executive have performed their offices, never grudging time or effort in the services of the student body.

Muskoka, 1912

TEN days spent among the beautiful natural surroundings of the Muskoka District, together with three hundred girls from the colleges of Canada forms an experience never to be forgotten by any girl who has had the privilege of experiencing it. The Muskoka Conference, held every summer at Elgin House, Lake Joseph, is a gathering of women students from Canadian colleges for the purpose of deepening Christian character, stimulating an interest in Bible and Mission Study among students, and creating a spirit of unity and good-fellowship between the representatives of the different colleges.

Last year McGill sent five delegates to the Conference, and what may have been lacking in numbers was certainly made up in enthusiasm and loyalty toward our Alma Mater. The familiar M-c-G-i-l-l often rang out above all else.

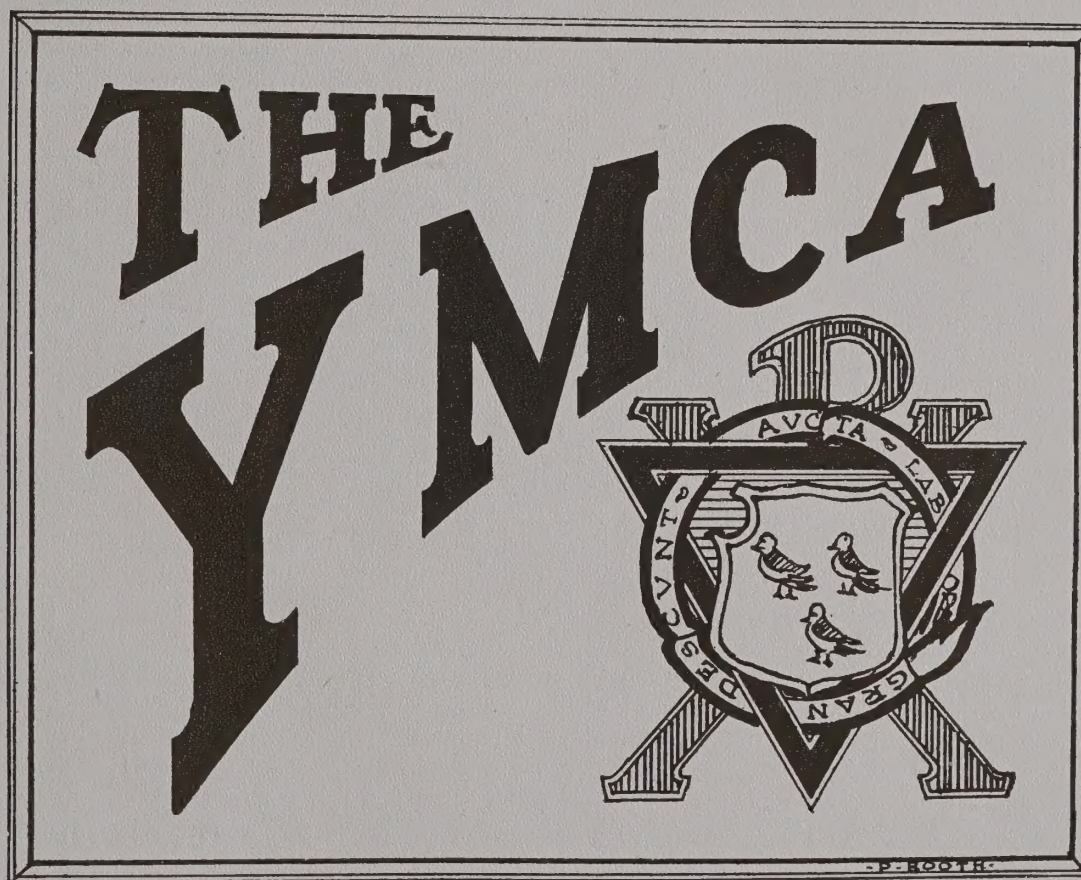

McGill played basketball against University College, entered in some of the events of Sports Day, and above all was victorious in the Tennis Tournament. Varsity, U.N.B., Acadia, Mount Allison, Dalhousie, McMaster and Queens were all vanquished before the onslaught of McGill.

But what was the more important and even the more interesting part of the Conference were the study classes and meetings which took up the mornings and evenings. Here, at such a Conference, amid such surroundings, one obtains a new idea of the Christian life and the missionary enterprise.

Among the leaders of the Conference were Rev. Dr. Law, Rev. Canon Gould, and Prof. J. L. Gilmour, of Toronto. Miss A. V. Rice, and Mrs. Mackay, of India, and last but not least, two loyal McGill grads., Rev. C. A. Sykes, of Toronto and Rev. A. W. Lohead, from Honan, China.

Perhaps the best idea of what the Conference means to those who attend may be gathered from the expressions of regret that the days should have passed so quickly, and the universal determination to return the following year if it is at all possible.

The Y.M.C.A. at McGill

FROM the day a man comes to McGill as a Freshman until the moment he receives his degree—and even after that—the Young Men's Christian Association fills a real place in his life. He may be unconscious of it, but it is true nevertheless. Nowadays we wonder how McGill men ever got along before Strathcona Hall and the Union were built. Strathcona Hall, the home of the Y.M.C.A., was opened in 1905, through the munificence of Mr. W. M. Birks, Lord Strathcona and many others, and the untiring efforts of Dean Adams and a band of enthusiastic students. Since that time the Hall has become headquarters for a good deal of student activity.

The Y.M.C.A. exists to serve—to serve men in any way it can, physically, mentally, socially, and spiritually. This mission we believe it fills at McGill. Naturally at a great University such as this, it is the social and spiritual side of life which is more or less neglected—the others are well provided for. Receptions, “conversats,” suppers and skating parties provide opportunity for the men to become acquainted with their fellow students at the Royal Victoria College.

It is with the religious life of the students that the Association is most of all concerned. McGill has been condemned recently as a “godless” institution. Anyone who knows the conditions prevailing at college can see at once the absurdity of this accusation. It is true that the men are not always particularly strong on creed and dogma and molly-coddle sort of stuff, but there is no lack of belief in the fundamentals of Christianity expressed in faith in a Supreme Being who is a loving Father and, following from this faith, the desire to serve one's fellow-men. The study of the Bible, the basis of true Christianity, forms a large part of the work of the Y.M.C.A. This year about two hundred men have been meeting regularly in small groups for the discussion of Bible questions. These classes, which are under the leadership of a student or graduate, do much toward bringing to every man the personal individual appeal of the teachings of Jesus.

Mission Study groups for the study of the great missionary enterprise have been equally successful. No man can be thoroughly versed in the world situation of the day without a knowledge of the history and operation of the Christian missionary forces. The Peterboro Missionary Conference for the colleges of Ontario and Quebec, to which McGill sent a delegation numbering over twenty, did much to stimulate missionary activity here at McGill, and brought to every man and woman a realization of his or her responsibility in the carrying on of this great work.

A record of the year would not be complete without a word about the work of the three Association Secretaries. One of them Murray Brooks, '08, is thousands of miles away from us in body, but seems ever present in spirit and in interest. Many still at McGill remember Murray as President of the Alma Mater Society and later as Secretary of the Association. McGill now supports him as Student Secretary in Colombo, Ceylon, where he is doing excellent service. Then as General Secretary, where could we find a man to equal Ken Dowie? As champion hurdler and jumper, and general all-round good fellow Ken is known to every McGill man. This year, through his work at the Association, he has come to fill even a larger place in the hearts of his many friends. In September Ken leaves for Formosa to join the swelling ranks of McGill graduates on the foreign field. What is our loss will be China's gain, so the good wishes of all McGill grads and undergrads go with Ken Dowie as he enters his new field of service. Herbie Thomson, Arts '12, has been an able lieutenant in the work of the Association. China is getting him too, although we may not lose him for another year.

Northfield, 1912

FOR twenty-five years the annual student conference at Northfield, Mass., has been growing in influence and in interest until last year the five hundred or more students gathered there from the colleges of the Eastern States and Canada, unanimously pronounced it "the best ever." To one who has never attended Northfield, it is difficult to convey any idea of what the Conference really stands for, and has meant to the life of every individual fellow who has ever spent these ten days amidst such surroundings.

On the twentieth of June the McGill delegation left for the Conference. What the party lacked in numbers was amply made up in ability, enthusiasm, and loyalty to Old McGill. As follows: Ken Dowie, who needs no introduction; Herb Thomson, Arts '12, President of the Athletic Association, Asst. Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., etc., etc., etc.; E. Broken Reid, (who needs still less introduction!); George Dewey, Arts 1913; Allan McGarry, Arts 1913; Reg. Stevenson, Arts 1913; Jean H. Bieler, Arts 1913; Frank Sutherland, Arts '10; Jim Coote, Sci. '14, President of the Y.M.C.A.; and Reg. Tainton, from Grande Ligne. A delegation from Stanstead helped to swell the numbers of those who could shout for Old McGill.

The monotony of the trip was broken by fussing exploits perpetrated by Herbie and E. B., as well as Mr. Bieler's neat throw of E. B. Reid's brand new baseball mit out the window of the car. After a day's journey through the beautiful mountains of Vermont we landed at South Vernon, Mass., and were driven over across the Connecticut River to the Conference grounds at East Northfield.

The Conference is held in the beautiful grounds of the Northfield Seminary, a girls' College founded some years ago by the late Dwight L. Moody. Unfortunately there are no young ladies in evidence by the time the Conference assembles. The delegations are scattered about, some rooming in Marquand Hall or one of the many beautiful buildings, while others prefer to sleep in tents under the trees. McGill has always had tents looking out over the athletic field and the river, and affording excellent display for our great McGill banner, which, by-the-way, has always been the largest and best at Northfield.

The days are busy ones, filled with work and play. Breakfast comes at 7.30, then a conference on Association methods at half past eight. Mission Study from nine until ten. For these classes the delegates are offered a large selection of courses, a group in each of which is led by some competent returned missionary, or expert along this line of study. The most popular courses last year were Brown's "Chinese Revolution," Robert E. Speer's "South American Problems," Josiah Strong's "Challenge of the City," and, of course, "The Decisive Hour of Christian Missions," by John R. Mott.

Promptly at ten o'clock the bell is sounded to announce the Bible Classes. Small groups are again formed under the guidance of a student or graduate leader, and for a quiet hour out on the lawn or under the trees these college men discuss the teachings of Jesus as recorded in the Bible, and the application of those teachings to their own lives.

The next hour is spent in study or personal interviews with the leaders, and then the delegates assemble in the large Auditorium for the morning platform meeting. Here are heard many of the greatest speakers of the world, for where could one find any to surpass Robert E. Speer or John R. Mott?

The afternoon is given over to athletic contests, swimming, or walks through the beautiful hills and valleys. McGill had several representatives in the tennis tournament, and put up a splendid baseball nine whose only defect was that it was composed mainly of men from Stanstead. However, contrary to precedent and expectation, McGill lost in the annual game with Toronto by a score of 5 to 4. In view of subsequent events, we are, however, inclined to overlook such little outbreaks on the part of our sister University.

After supper comes the most wonderful time of all, for just as the sun is setting the men gather under the pines on "Round Top" where Mr. and Mrs. Moody are buried. Here one sits to watch the sun go down behind the distant hills across the valley of the Connecticut, and listen to a quiet vocational talk by one of the leaders of the conference. A man realizes as never before the true purpose in life, and decides that for him at least the pursuit of money shall take a very secondary place.

Then comes the evening meeting in the Auditorium. One of the big "hits" of the conference was made by Mr. Roswell Bates, the well-known social worker of New York City, when he told of his conversion. Half starved and frozen, away up in Northern Alaska he chanced to see a Cross. This was the crisis in his life. Since then he has been able, with the help of God, to transform one of Chicago's most awful wards into an habitable and even pleasant place, besides much useful work as Superintendent of the Spring St. Mission in New York.

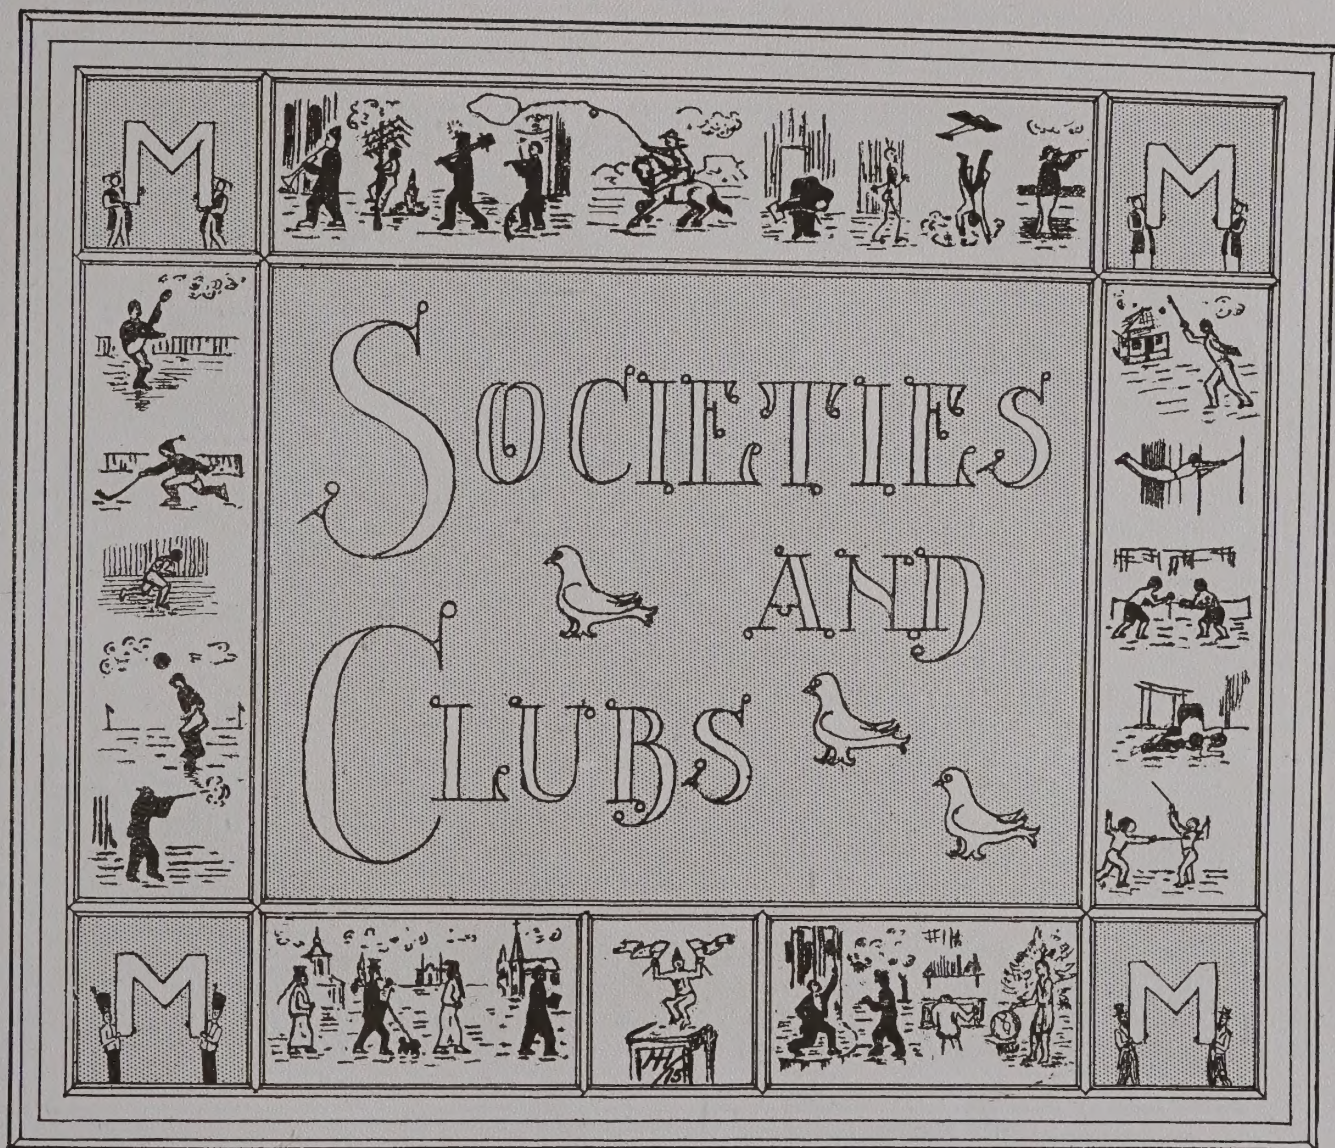

Space will not permit to tell of "Stunt Night" and the huge bonfire, and the great address of J. A. Macdonald of the Toronto "Globe" on his pet subject, "Anglo-American Fraternity." Bill Steedman's latest song "Rah, Rah, Rah for Old McGill, Boys!" was sung by our delegation with great effect, and proved extremely popular with the American students.

Northfield creates a wonderful spirit of fellowship between the men of the various colleges. There one meets with the very best from the American colleges. The spirit which exists cannot be described. A man comes to realize as never before what a fact Christianity is; that it is a man's religion; and he sees, too, more clearly the responsibility and the unparalleled opportunity for service which rests with each one of us in carrying on the great missionary enterprise.

The Intercollegiate Debates

AT the present writing the title of Intercollegiate Champions is well within the reach of the McGill Literary and Debating Society. Having defeated Queens in a most decisive manner on November 29, there is but one step farther to go. The Toronto-Ottawa debate resulted in a victory for Toronto. As a result Toronto and McGill debate for the Championship at McGill on the 18th of February.

The first debate with Queens, was on a subject of peculiar interest to college men. The resolution read: "Resolved, that the increasing size of American and Canadian universities is not in the best interests of college education." McGill had the affirmative, Queens the negative. The debate was held in Montreal, and the McGill debaters were well known. As a consequence there was a great deal of interest aroused, and a large attendance secured. Nor were those who attended disappointed, for not only were the McGill men victorious, but a very close and interesting debate was heard throughout.

The McGill team was composed of Messrs. Hugh Farthing and Donald MacGuire. Both of these men have won other laurels in the field of oratory. Last year, Mr. Farthing won the Gold Medal for public speaking; two years ago Mr. MacGuire debated successfully for his Freshman class against Ottawa Collegiate.

When the question of the second debate was discussed, the "Lit." executive unanimously decided to ask the same team to debate for the final honors. Unfortunately illness prevented Mr. Farthing from doing this, but his place has been well filled by Mr. Jas. Holmes, of Arts '15 and the Wesleyan College.

With the defeat of Queens, last year's champions, it is felt that a great deal has been done towards final success. Whether or not Toronto shall fall as easily remains to be seen.

But whatever the outcome may be, this one result is assured, that interest has been awakened in what is one of the oldest of arts. May McGill from now on take her place, not as a poor follower, but as a leader in this branch of inter-collegiate contest.

The Third McGill Mock Parliament

Hon. K. H. McCrimmon

THE Third Mock Parliament of McGill opened with a great deal of enthusiasm on the evening of Tuesday, January 21st. Every indication was that the third session would eclipse all previous ones. Certainly in point of numbers an Opening had never been as successful.

The ordinary ceremony was properly carried out. The officials and leaders in the House were, Governor-General, Prof. Leacock; Speaker, Mr. Warwick Chipman; Deputy-Speaker, Mr. Gregor Barclay; Premier, Mr. W. A. Walsh, with an illustrious Cabinet chosen from the Conservative party, which was the party in power. Confronting the government sat an equally brilliant body, the Liberal party, under the leadership of Mr. K. H. McCrimmon.

Two or three features distinguished it from its predecessors. Its session was a short one, having only three meetings. This was occasioned by the necessity of leaving a night for the Intercollegiate Debate. A second feature was that the office of Speaker was not held by a student. This change, the result of some regrettable incidents in last year's Parliament, proved itself a very wise and satisfactory one.

The great difference, however, was in the larger amount of interest taken in the Parliament by all the students. Not only were the two major parties greatly enlarged, but a formidable third party, under the name of the Independents, made itself felt.

The season was ushered in with a very vigorous Socialist controversy in the columns of the "Daily." This lasted for some time, but the attempt to form a strong Socialist party was not a success. The other parties were much more fortunate, and developed a strong following. The action of the Liberal party in inducing the Hon. Mackenzie King to visit the University and to speak on the Naval Bill, and the return meeting of the Conservatives did much to stimulate interest. The real value of the Mock Parliament was this year admirably carried out. It is to create an intelligent interest among students on public questions.

So far, McGill has continued in a course which has accomplished this, and has at the same time avoided the dangers of an over-zealous party spirit. May the Mock Parliament be an annual affair, and may it ever be as successful.

Recent Events at McGill

THE opening months of 1913 have been filled with interest for all McGill men. Indeed it is surprising that time is found for any study amidst such an abundance of meetings of this or that society. As we go to press the interest of everyone is centred on the composition of next year's Council. Mr. Shirley Dixon, B.A., of Law '14, will succeed Mr. McNaughton as President, he being returned unopposed. Mr. Dixon is a graduate of Arts '11, and has always taken a prominent part in student activity. Other members of the Council for 1913-1914 are Jas. C. Lee from Football, Lawrence H. Roberts from Hockey, C. S. McKenzie from Track, and Bill Hughes as President of the Athletic Association. Mr. A. K. Hugessen has been elected by acclamation to the Presidency of the Law Undergrad and will thus serve another term on the Council, while Messrs. K. Keeping and N. D. Johnston are Presidents respectively of the Undergrad. Societies of Science and Arts.

Early this year McGill suffered a severe loss through the death of Dr. Alexander Johnson, Vice-Principal Emeritus of the University, and for many years one of its leading figures. In the days when McGill was not enjoying her present prosperity, Dr. Johnson, with his buoyant spirit and indefatigable energy, proved an able lieutenant to our much-beloved Sir William Dawson. For some years Dr. Johnson has been in retirement from active service, although until the end he manifested a keen interest in all that pertained to McGill.

To the list of McGill's Rhodes Scholars must be added the name of William Ewart Gladstone Murray, B.A., whose appointment in February of this year was received with satisfaction by all McGill men. To recount Mr. Murray's numerous successes as a student would be superfluous, for his record is well-known. Last year "Bill" was President of the Track Club, President of the "Lit," intercollegiate champion long-distance runner, founder and editor of the "McGill Daily," and a graduate of Arts '12. He takes with him to Oxford the congratulations and good wishes of McGill men from coast to coast.

Unfortunately the Hockey Team has not been able to repeat last year's performance, and in spite of the fact that the 1912 championship team remained practically intact. Toronto regains the title of Intercollegiate Champions. In the assault-at-arms, Varsity was also successful, winning by a narrow margin from Queens and McGill. It will take, however, a good many boxing bouts or basketball games to make up for a certain Rugby Championship recently acquired.

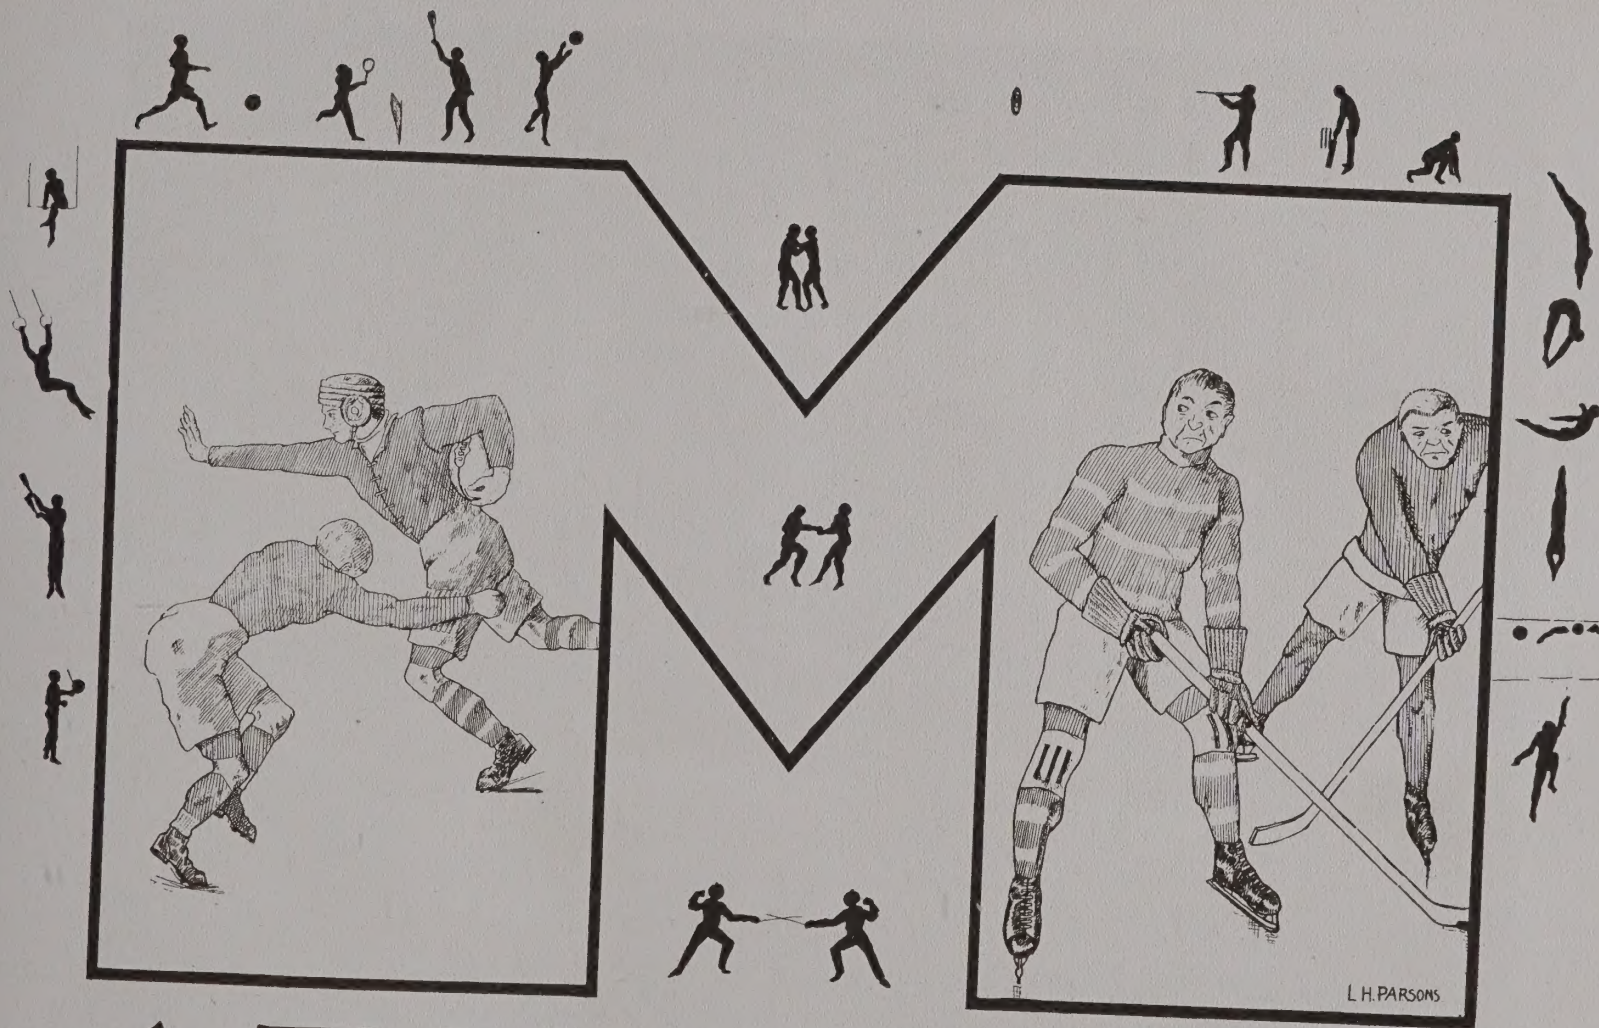

In the second Intercollegiate Debate, McGill went down before Toronto in endeavoring to uphold the principle of conscription. The debate was, perhaps, the best ever heard at McGill.

Dramatic effort at McGill has been stimulated this winter by two notable student productions. For the first time in history R.V.C. '13 invited Arts '13 to co-operate in their annual senior play. A large and ambitious company from these two classes produced Pinero's "Cabinet Minister" in an extremely brilliant fashion. It would be difficult to single out individuals for special mention from a company where all played with equal merit the parts to which they were assigned. A week later the French Club staged two one-act comedies. "L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle," a farce by Tristan Bernard, was amusingly rendered by an all-English cast. In De Musset's "Un Caprice," Prof. Du Roure and Mlle. Greterin, of the Modern Language Department, did exceptionally well.

On March 11th, McGill was honored by a visit from Ambassador Bryce, who addressed a huge mass meeting of students in the Union. On the same day Dr. Freidrich Friedmann, the distinguished German physician, conducted some tests at McGill in connection with his alleged cure for tuberculosis. On the 12th the Honorary Degree of LL.D. was conferred on Bishop Boyd-Carpenter, who came to Canada in order to inaugurate the new Theological Affiliation, as recorded elsewhere in this volume.

And so the days slip by, Winter running into Spring, and examinations looming large ahead. Let them come! A glance thro' this Annual, I hope, is all that is needed to convince anyone that examinations do not comprise the whole summit of student ambition, and that the basis of true education lies not only in books, but also in one's fellow-men.

THE annual Inter-class Sports were held at the M.A.A.A. Grounds on Friday, Oct. 11th. The entry list was particularly large, including in addition to our Montreal McGill men quite a number from Macdonald College. Competition was keen throughout, although poor track weather rendered good performance practically impossible. The showing of Cushing in the pole vault was the feature of the meet. After clearing the bar at 9ft. 11ins., the old record, he gradually worked up to 10 ft. 8 ins., thus succeeding in raising the former mark 9 ins.

"Big Mac." as usual captured all the weight events, but did not better any of his last year's records. Dunn and Page also showed up well in the weights.

In the short distances Le Gault, Stanley, and Hovey divided the honors; while in the half, mile, and three mile Russell had everything his own way.

The Sophomore class won out in the total number of points by a narrow margin from Juniors and Seniors, the Freshmen being completely outclassed.

The following is a summary of the events:—

100 YARDS (Record 10 1-5 secs.)—1st, A. Le Gault, '16 ; 2nd, H. F. Eberts, '15 ; 3rd, B. E. Atkins, '13. Time, 10 4-5 secs.

120 YDS. HURDLES (Record, 16 2-5 secs.)—1st, H. Hull, '13 ; 2nd, Burgess, '13 ; 3rd, Walker, Macdonald '14. Time 17 3-5 secs.

ONE MILE (Record 4 min. 36 secs.)—1st, A. H. Russell, '15 ; 2nd, Muir, Macdonald '14 ; 3rd, W. C. Lowry, '16. Time, 5 min. 1 sec.

16-LB. HAMMER (Record 116 ft. 7 ins.)—1st, J. J. MacDougall, '14 ; 2nd, J. Dunn, '13 ; 3rd, S. M. Page, '13. Distance, 116 ft.

Intercollegiate Track Meet

THIS season the Intercollegiate Track Meet was held in Toronto on October 18th. McGill sent down a team strong in field events, but much weaker than usual on the track. In the weights, MacDougall and Dunn performed very creditably, the former winning ten points while the latter captured six. Big "Mac" won both Discus and Shot quite easily, but was defeated in the Hammer Throw by Philips' record throw of 129 ft.

In the Track events McGill did not capture a single first place. The 100 Yds. and 220 Yds. were won in good time by Brown of Varsity, with Egbert, also of Varsity, second. Hovey and Stanley made the famous "Mel" Brock go the limit in the quarter and were only beaten out by inches. The pole vault and broad jump went to Bricker, of Varsity, without much close competition. In the former event he broke the previous record, made by himself last year in Montreal, by clearing the bar at 11 ft. 4 ins. Lemay and MacKenzie made good in the jumps, and Harry Hull finished a close third in the hurdles.

The event which attracted most attention during the meet was the one-mile run. 4 min. 36 secs. had stood as the record ever since Jimmy Kemp ran his famous mile in 1906. This year both Campbell, of Varsity, and Russell, of McGill, finished well under that time. Between the report of the pistol and the crossing of the tapes at no time were these two competitors separated by more than six or seven yards. Campbell led off at a killing pace from the start, but Russell would not be distanced. After a brilliant sprint Campbell won out by about four yards in the remarkably fast time of 4 min. 31 2-5 secs.

To win back the Championship next fall McGill men must work hard. Toronto will have practically the same team, and considering that they have some half-a-dozen record holders our sole chance lies in hard and intelligent training during the summer and fall.

Below is a summary of the events:—

100 YARDS (Record 10 secs.)—1st, Brown, Varsity ; 2nd, Egbert, Varsity ; 3rd, Kiddermaster, R.M.C. Time, 10 3-5 secs.

POLE VAULT (Record 11 ft.)—1st, Bricker, Varsity ; 2nd, Lemay, McGill ; 3rd, Foster, Queens. Height, 11 ft. 4 ins.

HALF MILE (Record 2 min. 1-5 secs.)—1st, Brock, Varsity ; 2nd, Hendry, Varsity ; 3rd, Scott, Queens. Time, 2.08 min. 3-5 secs.

16-LB. HAMMER (Record, 116 ft. 7 ins.)—1st, Philips, Varsity ; 2nd, Dunn, McGill ; Distance, 129 ft.

220 YARDS. (Record, 22 1-5 secs.)—1st, Brown, Varsity ; 2nd, Egbert, Varsity ; 3rd, Kiddermaster, R.M.C. Time, 23 4-5 secs.

M'GILL HOCKEY TEAM
INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS
1911-12

Wm. J. ...

Intercollegiate Hockey, 1912

AMONG the many athletic triumphs of a memorable session, perhaps the most outstanding was the admirable showing displayed by our senior hockey team. The Hockey Championship came at an opportune time, and proved to be the herald of several succeeding victories.

The American tour which took place during the Christmas vacation was most successful, both from the point of view of the games won, and also because of the practice and experience which it afforded our players. When it is considered that the team went to the States without ever being together on any previous occasion, the work done was particularly remarkable. Three games were played, all of which were won by McGill.

When the Intercollegiate League opened with the Queens game in Montreal, few anticipated our ability to win from the Kingston players. However, fortune favoured us, and we succeeded in defeating our opponents, although it was generally agreed that they had the better of the play especially in the closing part of the game.

On January 19th, the triumph of the season occurred, when Toronto fell before us on their own ice, in the most memorable game of the year. At half-time the score was 8-3 in favor of Varsity, and, before five minutes of the second half had passed they had scored two additional goals. Immediately something agreeable happened which is almost beyond explanation. However, the outcome of it all was that, within five minutes of the end of the game, the score was tied 10-10. There was no further scoring during the regular playing period remaining, but in the first five of overtime, McGill tallied twice, and the game was ours 12-10.

Following close upon this notable victory was the one reverse of the season, when Harvard humbled us in the Boston Arena in a somewhat decisive manner. An exaggerated opinion of our powers coupled with a tendency to underrate the Americans were the undoubted causes of our downfall. Before the evening was over we recognized, much to our own regret, that the day was passed when second-rate Canadian teams could make successful hockey invasions into the United States. Notwithstanding, the lesson learned was a most profitable one, and was sufficient to dispel any undue over-confidence on our part during the rest of the season.

The two Intercollegiate games remaining in our section of the league were exceedingly spectacular and remarkably exciting, although we won both with comfortable margins. The Queen's-McGill game in Kingston ended with a score of 9-3, while we won the Toronto game on our own ice 12-4. Neither of these games, as the score might indicate, was an easy one for our team, but both were contested bitterly, and a final rally of goals on each occasion afforded the McGill team well-merited victory.

Meanwhile Ottawa College had won the other section of the Intercollegiate League, and two "home and home" games with Ottawa had to be played before the Championship was decided. The most remarkable features of these games were the conspicuous roughness on both occasions, and the enormous score which was piled up by the McGill team in the game played in the Montreal Arena.

The success of our hockey team was due largely to two factors. In the first place our coach, Mr. L. H. Roberts, was extremely competent, and secondly the various players had implicit confidence both in his knowledge of the game and also in his ability to impart that knowledge to those under his direction. He took a group of players, of which not a single member had a regular place in the senior team of the preceding season, and by persistent hard work so developed the material under his control that before the season closed McGill was recognized as one of the best amateur teams in the whole Dominion.

Intercollegiate Rifle Champions

WHILE all eyes were turned toward our heroes of the gridiron and the phenomenal success with which they were meeting, another group of men were practising faithfully, and they in turn were amply rewarded. For not only did the members of the Rifle Team succeed in bringing back to McGill the Intercollegiate Championship which was lost last year, but they piled up a score of 759 points out of 840 possible. This is the highest ever made at McGill, and only once in Canadian Intercollegiate shooting has it been exceeded; that was by Queens last year when they scored 760, using the much disputed "low position" which has since been ruled out by the Dominion Rifle Association.

Four or five years ago a score of 80 or 85 out of 105 would have carried off first prize at the annual competition, but this year the average score of all who shot was 85, while the average of those who made the Intercollegiate Team was $94\frac{7}{8}$. This improvement is largely due to the excellence of the rifles supplied by the Department of Militia of the Dominion Government.

The scores of those shooting on the team were as follows :—

The next most important event in the Rifle Club's season is the inter-year competition for the Birkett Cup. For the third time in succession 1913 carried off the trophy. They are the only year which has on three occasions won the Birkett Cup. The 1913 team was as follows :—

Name	Score
R. E. L. HOLLINSE.....	97
G. M. GELDERT.....	96
J. H. ATKINSON.....	95
H. E. CUMMING.....	94

The Rifle Club has felt very keenly this year the loss of the late Dr. Gregor, who, ever since the Club was organized, had been the Honorary President and one of its most enthusiastic members. His place, however, has been ably filled by Dr. Birkett, who donated the Birkett Cup some years ago, and has always been very much interested in the Club. This year he has been good enough to present an individual cup to each member of the winning team.

The Rifle Club is now one of the most popular of the minor athletic clubs. Good support has been received from the Government, and the officers are looking forward to a largely increased membership and an even more record-breaking season next year.

McGill Swimmers

GEORGE HODGSON, Science '15, is now beyond a doubt the greatest all-round swimmer in the world. By his record-breaking performances at the Olympic Games at Stockholm last summer he brought honor to Canada and to McGill. Swimming against the pick of the world George easily won the 1500 metre race. Nor has this been the extent of his triumphs, for on the recent trip of the McGill Swimming Team to the States he succeeded in breaking American and Canadian Intercollegiate records in practically every race he entered. However, McGill has by no means a "one-man-team," for at the recent meet in Toronto, without the services of Hodgson, our boys gathered in 43 points to 14 of Varsity. Below is appended a summary of the events with times of the American trip.

HORLICK'S Malted Milk

ITS value is based not alone on chemical qualities, but also on the possession of certain physical attributes, e.g. palatability, solubility, ease of digestion and assimilation; qualities, moreover, which cannot be ignored in the discussion of dietetic values. It is also true that the record of our product as a nutriment, for almost thirty years, bears irrefutable testimony to the genuineness of its physiological worth, and its general excellence as a food product.

The Right Medicine

SICKNESS does not come upon you in one day.

True, you may be taken seriously ill any one day, but the cause of the trouble has probably been creeping on for some time.

That's why you should consult your physician.
He is the man to diagnose your case, and find out first causes, but we are the people to compound the medicine that he orders, for we do it in a way that gives him the greatest amount of co-operation, and you—the most satisfaction.
